

PERMISSION TO CHASE BANDITS ON U. S. SOIL SOUGHT BY CARRANZA

REQUEST RECEIVED AT WASH-INGTON CONSIDERED FAVOR-ABLE TO AMERICAN EX-PEDITION.

FUNSTON HAS ORDERS

"Take Dead or Alive" Substance of Instructions From Washington
—Mexican Chieftain Menaces Mormon Colony.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, March 11.—While American troops are preparing to move across the Mexican border to exterminate the Villa bandits, General Carranza in an official communication delivered through Consul Silliman, has asked the United States for permission to send his troops into American territory in pursuit of outlaws. Administration officials regard Carranza's proposal as favorable. It is realized that such an agreement would go far to satisfy Carranza and permit him to comply with popular sentiment in Mexico.

Calls Expedition "Defensive."
Secretary Baker today referred to the American expedition as a "defensive" one. This was regarded as a significant indication of the administration policy to make it clear that it is proceeding with scrupulous regard for the sovereignty of Mexico, and entirely in aid of constituted authorities.

Villa was today reported moving southeast with not more than 300 men, last night's report gave his force as 200, but this was considered by sympathizers in his territory. By his movement southeast, it was thought a threatened attack on the American Mormon colony at Casas Grandes had passed for the present.

The senate foreign relations committee unanimously endorsed the action of the president in sending American troops into Mexico.

Answered.
General Carranza's note will be answered after it has been laid before President Wilson. The reply of the United States probably will say to Carranza that his suggestion will be considered, if at any time it should become necessary for his forces to pursue Villa bandits in American territory. Carranza's forces are not there in sufficient numbers to relieve the men and that if a similar situation should arise in the United States, his offer of co-operation would be acceptable.

An official translation of Carranza's dispatch makes it read at the conclusion:

"I address the government of the United States requesting the necessary permission for Mexican forces to cross into American territory in pursuit of these bandits, acknowledging the sovereignty of the United States of the United States crossing into Mexican territory, if the raid effected at Columbus, should unfortunately be repeated at any other point on the border."

No definite announcement was made at the war department, but it was generally understood. Brigadier General John J. Pershing, who commanded the principal column of American troops in pursuit of Villa, Major General Funston retaining command of several operations, which, it is expected, will involve the use of three or more columns.

Funston Has Orders.
Major General Funston, in command of American troops along the border, has orders from Washington to send an armed force into Mexico to take Francisco Villa and his outlaws dead or alive, and the Washington government expects him to execute them. Actual details of carrying out the president's instructions are to be left to General Funston, who was expected to have American troops enter Mexico by nightfall.

The strictest secrecy was observed by the war department officials today regarding the army plan of capture of the bandits.

President Wilson today aboard the naval yacht Mayflower on a week and cruise down the Potomac. Unless some unusual development occurs, the president will not return until Monday.

Given Full Authority.
Instructions conveying full authority to General Funston to dispatch expedition into Mexico, in pursuit of Villa and bandits, are today in General Funston's hands. Secretary Baker announced that full discussion as to the number of men to be used and the route to be followed has been left with General Funston.

General Carranza, through Consul Silliman, has asked the American government for permission to send Mexican troops across the border and into the United States in pursuit of the bandits.

Funston Not in Charge.
San Antonio, Tex., March 11.—Major General Funston announced here today that while he will have direction of military affairs along the Mexican border, the expedition into Mexico to capture Francisco Villa will be in charge of a brigadier general. General Funston said the name of the commanding officer would be given out at Washington.

The full military squadron stationed here will be dispatched with the expedition. Organization will not be completed for two or three days, General Funston said, as troops from other army divisions than the southern will be needed to the border forces, going direct to the border.

The general maintained silence today as to the size of the expedition, the point or points at which it will enter Mexico.

Offers from Volunteers.
Secretary Baker said that the war department had been deluged with offers from individuals and organizations offering service as volunteers. There was no present need, he said, of summoning volunteers to the colors, although the department appreciated fully the patriotic spirit being manifested.

Latest reports of the whereabouts of Villa, say he reached Ascension, south of Pecos, some time yesterday, with a force of a brigadier general, General Funston, after his flight following the attack on Columbus. This information reached here today in a message to the Carranza embassy from Consul Andreas Garcia at El Paso.

Quiet Along Border.

Columbus, March 11.—The American soldiers, officers and men in their preparatory activities displayed an eagerness for receipt of the order that would start them into Mexico. Despite nervousness among civilians, quiet prevailed in this border district during the night and practically every case circulated reports of apprehensions of hostile Mexicans were unfounded. Early in the night a Mexican refused to obey the command of an American sentry to halt. The Mexican was killed. Among the Mexicans arrested for spying was Pablo Gonzalez. When taken, he wore overalls over a military uniform.

Report Ranch Raided.
Eighteen mounted Mexicans are reported having raided the home of H. A. Blankenship, the section foreman at Blankenship, eighteen miles east of here. The family including two small children, escaped through the rear door and crawled to cover in the darkness, where they lay in the brush most of the night.

Train No. 8, arriving about daylight, was flagged and the family taken to El Paso. The squad is said to have passed south into Mexico.

Wounded Bandit Dies.
Mrs. J. J. Moore, wounded in the raid on Columbus Thursday, was reported as being in a more critical condition today. Her wounds are not thought to be fatal.

Wounded Bandit Dies.
Captain Pablo Garcia, the wounded Villa officer, died here today. Civil authorities had included Garcia among the Mexicans against whom they planned to fit charges of murder as a result of the Columbus raid.

Villa Menaces Mormons.
El Paso, March 11.—The position of the five hundred members of the Mormon colony at Casas Grandes in the Chihuahua district, one hundred and fifty miles by train from El Paso, critical as it was in the first place, was further enanced today by the presence of Francisco Villa with a band of three hundred followers at La Ascension, close to the railroad over which they must travel to American frontier.

In El Paso hope of the escape for the Mormons is based largely on unverified rumor that Villa is short of ammunition. Although only three hundred men are reported to be with Villa at La Ascension, Villa still has a force of two thousand in that region.

Held Bandits for Murder.
Columbus, March 11.—Seven wounded Villa soldiers captured by General Silliman's troops of 14th U. S. cavalry in Thursday's battle here, will be charged with murder for killing the American soldiers. The men in the light according to announcement today by E. B. Stone, special agent of department of justice. The old and two officers, Stone said, were probably that similar charges of murder would be filed against the prisoners in state courts of New Mexico in connection with killings of nine civilians by bandit raiding.

Pablo Sanchez, arrested while signaling Mexicans across the border yesterday and held as a spy, will be charged with aiding an enemy who on the soil of United States. The men against whom murder charges are to be filed, are Pablo Garcia, a three years' lieutenant in Villa's army for three years; Lieutenant Pablo Chavez, with two years service under the insurgent chief; Leno Ruiz, Juan Sanchez, Elias Meres, and Antonio Moron, privateers in the Mexican army. They were with his father, Antonio Reyes, who joined Villa three months ago in Chihuahua.

Eighth Murder Charge.
The case of Jesse D. Taylor, a wounded American soldier, captured at Fort Bliss, will be the basis for the eighth charge of murder against the bandits. The United States commissioner will be summoned here from Del Rio to arraign them as they lie in the hospital tent in a cavalry camp here.

Texas Rough Riders Ready.
Dallas, Tex., March 11.—A regiment of rough riders organized long in advance of present Mexican crisis awaits acceptance by the government, according to W. Edwards, a veteran of the Spanish-American war. The regiment is called the "Texas Mavericks," and is composed of about 100 men, many of whom are veterans of the Mexican revolution. They are ready to move at any time.

Could Leave on Short Notice.
Superior, Wis., March 11.—The entire Wisconsin military force of three infantry regiments, three batteries of artillery and a troop and independent company of cavalry could leave Camp Douglas, the state mobilization camp, thirty-six hours after being called out, said Staff Captain B. E. Clemens of this city today. The two Superior companies could leave here at six o'clock tonight, ready to take the field.

Tenth Cavalry at Border.
Douglas, Ariz., March 11.—The Tenth United States cavalry, Colonel W. C. Brown commanding, arrived here early today from Fort Huachuca, Arizona, after a two days' march.

"DOWN WITH AMERICANS!" CRIES VILLA, AS U. S. ARMY PURSUES

The United States intends to swallow Mexico. Let us do what we can to make it stick in their throats. Death to Americans.

—Gen. Villa to his troops.

General Villa, Secretary of War Baker and machine guns used on Mexican border.

The present troubles of the United States on the Mexican border may be traced to Villa, the bandit, the man who was befriended by America in his efforts to gain control of the Mexican government. Secretary of War Baker and other officials of the government are convinced that border troubles will not cease until Villa is either captured or slain.

NO WARNING GIVEN TO NORWEGIAN SHIP

Torpedoed Off Havre Roads on March 9th, U. S. Consul Reports—Seven Americans Rescued.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, March 11.—Consul Deborne, at Havre, reported today that when the Norwegian bark Silus, from New York to Havre, was torpedoed without warning in Havre Roads on the night of March 9, seven Americans aboard were rescued. The loss of the Silus was first reported last night from London. Three members of the crew were lost.

One American Hurt.
Paris, March 11.—Seven of the crew of the Silus, which was torpedoed, were Americans. The Silus left New York February fourth for Havre. The Pettit Parisien says that of the Americans on the Silus was injured seriously in his legs and was taken to the Pasteur hospital.

But Four Americans?
New York, March 11.—There were only four Americans aboard the Norwegian bark, Silus, which was torpedoed without warning near Havre, according to agents of the line here. They were members of the crew. She carried no passengers.

ARMY RESERVE OF CIVILIANS HIS PLAN

Although it has not been generally known and the work was done without any bustle or show, certain members of the Builders' Exchange for some time past have been attempting to bring the large branch of the Chicago Hosiery Manufacturing company to the city. The company, since the first of the year, has been looking over southern and southeastern Wisconsin with plans for locating a branch factory. The local men heard of this and at once began a quiet campaign to induce the company to locate its manufacturing agency here. It was apparent today however, that they had failed, upon receipt of a letter from the concern which announced the decision of locating the plant at Sheboygan.

One of those behind the move to get the plant here said today, "We are not discouraged over our failure to get the branch plant here. It only serves as an incentive to work harder for Janesville."

"Had the plant been located it would have given employment to a large number of women, understand Sheboygan, aside from giving a very large site, also advanced a large sum of money."

Our interest in the Janesville tractor and Gas Engine company just now must continue until everything in this project is running smoothly. We cannot get too many irons in the fire at one time, and perhaps it is just as well we finish the other work before attempting any new."

Vienna, March 11.—To meet the serious shortage of certain drugs and medicines, the Pharmacological Institute has been conducting investigations into the production of proper substitutes. The Druggists' Wochenblatt publishes a long list of successful "Ersatz" medicines already produced, among them being a synthetic form of morphia, a substitute for glycerine, and bromine to take the place of iodine as a skin disinfectant.

SEA PLANES SHELL BLACK SEA FLEET

German Aviators Rain Bombs on Russian Fleet of Warships and Merchantmen

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, March 11.—An official communication, according to Central News dispatch from Amsterdam, says on Thursday morning a German aeroplanes dropped bombs on Russian squadron of one battleship and five destroyers, and on several Russian merchant ships in the Black Sea near Kail Akra Cape, on the coast of Bulgaria about twenty-five miles north-east of Varna. It was observed that some of the destroyers were hit. Despite heavy shelling from the Russian warships, the communication adds, the seaplanes returned safely.

BREAK GROUND TODAY FOR ENGINE FACTORY

W. J. Hilt and Julius Hager Start Work This Afternoon—Active Operations Begin Monday.

Spring weather of the type which visited Janesville this morning is acting like a fever on members of the Builders' Exchange and boosters for the success of the Janesville Tractor and Gas Engine company factory. Foundation excavating, originally scheduled for Monday morning was started this afternoon. W. J. Hilt and Julius Hager, finding today's condition for building work of too good a nature to let slip by without at least a little building activity.

After the afternoon they started, the site has been surveyed and staked for the building. Monday morning active operations are to commence with a rush. Laborers who are not employed in the city, have been looking for building work of too good a nature to let slip by without at least a little building activity.

POLICE "DRILLING" CAUSES A SUICIDE

Fourteen-Year-Old Racine Boy Taken Poison After Third Degree by Detectives.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Racine, March 11.—After undergoing a severe drilling at the hands of local detectives who were seeking to establish the identity of a boy who robbed a south side store, Philip, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Holden, committed suicide late last night by taking poison.

During the examination by the police, the boy protested his innocence and the officers pursued the matter no further.

The examination however, apparently preyed upon the mind of the youngster as he obtained an eighth of an ounce of poison and poured it over a box of candy. After eating the sweets he rushed to the apartment of a neighbor woman and died in her arms.

Three pathetic notes were written by the boy and left for the parents who were absent for the evening. In each of these he protested his innocence and seemed to be under the impression that it was necessary for him to die in order not to disgrace his family.

OSHKOSH MEN'S LEAGUE PLANS FIGHT TO CLOSE CITY SALOONS SUNDAYS

Oshkosh, March 11.—This morning at the Oshkosh normal school Wittenberg and Green Lake high schools played in the sectional basketball tournament and Wittenberg won by score of 16 to 6.

This eliminates Green Lake from the tournament and tonight Wittenberg and Ripon play to decide third place in the championship.

Oshkosh and Fond du Lac high play tonight for the sectional championship.

The contest this morning was one-sided. Wittenberg was strong on field goals, while Green Lake got one.

PORTUGAL PREPARES TO ENTER THE WAR AS ENGLAND'S ALLY

Cabinet Gives Way to National Defense—German Ships Seized at Great Britain's Request.

Lisbon, via Paris, March 11.—The Portuguese cabinet has resigned to give place to the national defense government, which is now being formed. In parliament yesterday Dr. Augusto Zoaers, former foreign minister of the retiring cabinet, read the exchanges between Germany and Portugal and also a note from Great Britain requesting the Portuguese government to take in view of the alliance between these nations, to seize German ships in Portuguese ports. Tranquillity prevailed throughout the country.

Parliament adopted a resolution giving the government power to take all measures necessitated by state of war existing with Germany. Leaders of all the opposition groups offered to support the government. At suggestion of the president of the chamber, cheers were given for entente allies.

Portugal's seizure of German merchantmen was the immediate cause of Germany's declaration of war against the republic. It has not been known hitherto that Portugal took this action at the request of Great Britain.

German Minister Leaves.
Lisbon, March 10, via London, March 11.—After a lengthy interview with the Portuguese secretary of foreign affairs, Dr. Rosen, the German minister to Portugal, left here today for Madrid, accompanied by other members of the German legation. Their departure was not marked by an incident. Parliament has been summoned to meet in special session tomorrow. The newspapers have been forbidden to print any news of a military character.

TWO NORMAL SCHOOL APPOINTMENTS MADE

A. M. Royce of Superior Named President of Platteville Normal.—Schofield at Eau Claire.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Madison, March 11.—Asa M. Royce, Superior, was elected president of Platteville normal school at noon today.

Harvey Schofield, St. Paul, was elected president of the Eau Claire normal.

The board of normal regents was called for a special session to pass upon these two appointments.

Royce is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, the class of 1905. He has been principal of high schools at Augusta and Eau Claire, and about a year ago was elected principal of Central high school at St. Paul. The Eau Claire appointment is for the new normal school which has just been completed and will open next fall.

Schofield is also a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, the class of 1905. ## RUSSIA STARTS THRIFT CAMPAIGN TO SAVE MONEY TO EXPEND FOR THE WAR

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Petrograd, March 11.—A committee of members of the Duma have begun a thrift campaign, and are urging the government to support them by prohibiting importation of luxuries and by using every means in its power to turn the stream of unfruitful expenditure into the channel of national war effort.

The committee urges that the railways should cease to carry anything but the necessities of life, and protests that flowers and mineral waters have in some cases been given precedence over flour and coal. The Ministry of Railways has just announced that passenger traffic on the line of Petrograd to Moscow will be stopped for a week, in order to allow the acceleration of freight and war traffic.

It is also being urged, although the tax already amounts to about 25 per cent of the price.

ENGLISH MONEY USED IN CIRCULATION IN FRANCE

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Paris, March 11.—English pennies and half pennies now circulate freely in France. They are generally accepted without objection particularly since the death of French copper coins made itself felt. Curiously enough the senators are the most rebellious to the circulation of their ally's copper money.

A newsman at the Luxembourg palace says the grey-haired men of the upper house stubbornly refuse to accept the English coppers. The deputies, however, accept them without a word.

Post card vendors seek them out and save them for English customers, considering it an advantage to be able to offer a "Tommy" the coin of his country in change.

RAILROAD COMMISSION EMPLOYEES CRITICALLY ILL IN CHICAGO

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Madison, Wis., March 11.—William J. Hagenah, formerly connected with the Wisconsin railroad commission, now of Chicago, is critically ill at the Chicago hospital. Mr. Hagenah was taken ill Monday evening and was immediately rushed to the hospital by Dr. Albert J. Ochsner for an operation.

Mr. Hagenah was a member of the Railroad Commission and was reported that Mr. Hagenah was gaining slowly.

NO CHANGE AT VERDUN

Fighting Still Continues Before Fort
Vaux and on West Side of River
Meuse—Lull in Battle Expected.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Berlin, March 11.—The capture of French positions 1,400 yards wide, and about two-thirds of a mile deep, south of Ville-Aux-Bois, near Rheims, was announced today by the war office.

Claim Losses Small.
The German losses in the Verdun operations up to the end of last week, though accurately and officially unknown, are said to reach a total of only a few thousand in killed, wounded and missing, according to a statement obtained through authoritative source. It is interesting to contrast these figures, military officials give out, with the fantastic accounts in some of French and English newspapers, of men being mowed down thickly by machine guns and shrapnel fire that they had no room to fall and were left standing in stocks.

Paris, March 11.—The battle of Verdun is fast dwindling in intensity. The Germans have in no way impaired the main defenses of the fortress, notwithstanding the violence of their onslaughts. Whether they will make another big effort after a lull, or whether the battle will end as did the other great offensives on the western front by a return to normal conditions of trench warfare, cannot be discerned at present. French military opinion is inclined to believe the latter will be the case.

On the west bank of the Meuse, the Germans, facing an effective curtain of fire from the French, have made further attempts in the attacks between Douaumont village and the Haumont and on the village of Vaux, which were cut short by French fire before being developed.

There is still violent fighting for the possession of Fort Vaux, according to announcement of the French war office this afternoon.

The Germans have made progress along the slopes leading to this position, but they have not yet reached the barb wire entanglements in front of the woods.

FALLING CLAY LEDGE KILLS CITY EMPLOYEE

FRANK M. PALMER MEETS INSTANT DEATH IN OLD HAN. OVERROAD SANDPIT LATE YESTERDAY. AFTERNOON.

COMPANIONS ESCAPE

Elbert Loveland and Robert Kyle Jump When Mass Starts.—Palmer Stood Transfixed to Spot.

Frank M. Palmer, fifty-eight years of age, of 206 Center street, an employee of the street department of the city of Janesville, met instant death a few minutes before five o'clock Friday afternoon, when a three-foot ledge of clay, in the sandpit on the Hanover road, just at the edge of the city limits at the western terminus of Western avenue, fell and crushed him. With him were two companions, Robert Kyle of 620 North Chatham street and Elbert S. Loveland of 308 North Pine street. Their positions when the ledge began to fall were even more perilous than Palmer's, but they were not so badly hurt. Palmer, apparently confused by a shout to jump and the sight of the oncoming mass, stood transfixed in his path. "You don't suppose that mass under the pile?" shouted Loveland to Kyle, amazement when they recovered their consciousness. The companions, however, were not so lucky. A hasty run around the fallen ledge from their positions of safety proved the conjecture only too correct. The frozen dirt jump covered two-thirds of his body. The head and chest only were visible.

It was brought out this morning that Palmer met death because he was a faithful worker, industrious, and gave full value for compensation received. It was going on to five o'clock when he drove his team into the pit. The men were resurfacing Western avenue between the city limits and the highway. The clay was being made into a load and another before six, he said as he backed into the pit.

Milton Pioneer Dies

AMOS GRANDALL.

The death of Amos Grandall removed one of the earliest settlers of Rock County. He came to Wisconsin with his parents in 1838 and located on a farm near Milton Junction, which had been his home since then. He was a boy of fifteen years when he arrived in the untamed western country and he witnessed its growth from the earliest settlements.

SECURITY LEAGUE PLANS DISCUSSED

National Organization to Be Represented Here By Local Society.—Free Lecture Taken Up.

At a meeting of the local committee of the National Security League held at the city hall this afternoon at four o'clock, plans for organizing a branch of the league in this city were discussed. G. W. Baker of Chicago, representing the national organization, being present. The question of holding a public lecture in the immediate future was taken up. James V. Martin, U. S. A. R., a famous airplane designer, aviator and ship commander, direct from the scene of the national defense, would talk on national defense. The lecture will be held within the next two weeks.

Basketball tonight at the rink. Alfred Jacobson sentenced to nine months under confinement law. —Relatives to Take Children.

The mother sat with her husband before one of the tables in the municipal court room yesterday morning. She was not crying. But do not think that she was not grief-stricken, for her sorrow was deeper than that expressed by tears. It is probable there was no energy left in the woman, after a night's pondering and possibly crying alone at her home. The father looked ahead, his eyes almost extinguished, but it was evident that he felt the sorrow in a masculine way, as did his wife.

They were to lose their children. Their five children, from the ages of three to two years, were to be taken from their home and placed in what the court believed, better homes with better environment than they had in their own home. The mother remembered the work, hard toil that she had done, and it is to be granted that she is a hard working woman, in order to aid her children. It is possible that the mother thought that she would never enter her mind, but as she sat at the court bench, with her eyes, it looked as if such might be true.

But the court found on their own admission of guilty, that Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jacobson were not proper parents to care for their children and that they had neglected them and caused Helen Jacobson, aged five, to be in a most deplorable condition from liquor. Jacobson was sentenced to nine months, and the mother was committed to the state institution, the court thought it better that relatives of the family care for them.

By a court order the five children were taken from the parents and turned over to relatives. It is possible that in some future time, when the parents give sufficient evidence that they can properly provide and care for them, they will be returned. Instead of committing them to a state institution, the court thought it better that relatives of the family care for them.

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

BY DAISY DEAN

Hatred, duplicity, love, remorse and self-sacrifice—all the heart of one woman, all centered and focused on one man, in one day. Such is the theme that gives Bessie Barriscale some rare acting opportunities in the forthcoming feature, "Bullets and Brown Eyes."

William Desmond is the masculine intruder who comes into the life of the heroine portrayed by Bessie Barriscale, and is saved from a sudden and violent end at the hands of her relatives only by the fact that she decides she needs him alive more than her country needs him dead.

Two nations which have as yet no place on any map are revealed at war in this latest production and some remarkable scenes of fighting with the most modern engines of warfare are promised.

"HAM AND BUD"
PERFORM MIRACLE
From Grand comes one of the most amazing stories of the motion picture in war times that has yet been chronicled.

It tells of a wounded British soldier, robbed of his speech by a gas bomb, and invalided at home. He attended a picture theater where a "Ham and Bud" comedy was being shown and was so amused by the comedians that his speech was suddenly restored.

Detailed accounts of the seeming miracle which appeared in English papers were forwarded to the U. S. which has also received strong assurances from its England representatives of the authenticity of the story.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN
IN A NEW ROLE
Charlie Chaplin has a motion picture taken of him signing that new year's contract for $22,000.

Those who have seen the picture express disappointment. Chaplin went through the entire ceremony of signing without falling down stairs, unbuttoning the coat or kicking the other party to the contract on the shins. Several other persons were in the room, including a stenographer, who did not kick, and not one of them was assaulted.

a number of tense, dramatic situations and a series of novel incidents have been developed.

Miss Pickford's mastery of the mold pattern with humor is strikingly displayed throughout this five-part feature. She plays so effectively on the heart-strings of her audience that the smile and tear pursue each other constantly. Capable support is furnished the star by such sterling actors as Edward Marshall, Maggie Weston, Mildred Morris and Marcia Harris.

A children's matinee will be given at 4:15.

AT THE PRINCESS.

Katharine Kaelred, who will shortly appear in the Triangle picture, "The Winged Idol," at the Princess Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, has been repeatedly characterized as the most accomplished "vampire actress" of the American stage. She makes her entire motion picture under the direction of Thomas H. Ince in the role of a Russian seeress in this forceful drama, written by C. Gardner Sullivan.

For a number of years Miss Kaelred scored heavily in successful Broadway productions. Her sensational interpretation of "The Woman in a Pool There Was" brought the attention of the critics particularly to her wonderful ability. Under Mr. Ince's direction Miss Kaelred found unusual scope for her talents. In her face there are the fleeting emotions expected of the finished artist but it is in the use of her hands and arms that she perhaps is most wonderful. Her slightest gesture has a meaning and suggests all the fire and passion of the Russian adventures.

Elaborate settings have been provided for her apartment, including costly rugs, Russian furniture and trappings. Miss Kaelred wears twelve different styles of headgear in keeping with the present day styles employed by a Russian noblewoman and costing a small fortune.

DRAMATIC SUCCESS IN "THE SWAMP ANGEL"

Popular Hickman-Bessey Company Presents Fascinating Drama at Myers Theatre.

Everything was "open" last night at the Myers theatre, when the dollars changed hands on the deft gamblers' chances. Card tables, roulette wheels and other conceivable gambling devices were much in evidence, which added much to the reality of the play. "The Swamp Angel," acted as the title piece went by, and formed a sensational drama, concerning crooks and their influence upon the life of an innocent youth. Mr. Hickman took the part of a dissipated gambler and provoked much good humor by his droll actions and sayings. A good teaching could be obtained by the story, which brought to the audience's minds, facts that happen to millions of young men, and the pulsing sound of the wheel and the clink of gold, which eventually drags them down to disaster.

The popular comedy, "Never Touch Me," will be repeated again here this evening and for Sunday night, the Hickman-Bessey company will pull their big trump card, "On Parade," for their closing performance.

BASED UPON WHITTIER'S FAMOUS POEM AND CLYDE FITCH'S GREAT STAGE SUCCESS. A WAR STORY WITH-OUT A SINGLE BATTLE.

To be a real soldier in the Boer war, a scholar in English schools, a star football player, and a heavy-weight boxer are the distinctions that belong to George Rodel. There is quite a bit of history to this Rodel fellow. To begin with, he is a real Boer, but he talks fine English. He is a student and possesses much refinement. And judging from his past work in the flag he is to be judged some fairly good fighter. When he was 15 years of age Rodel stole away from his home in Johannesburg, South Africa, and after some difficulty obtained an education, he went to England and attended school. This was, of course, after the war. He was an apt scholar, big and strong, with plenty of nerve. He made a hit with his fellow students because of his love for athletics and because of his strength. His wonderful athletic ability gained him a place on that football eleven. It was due to the football game that Rodel became a boxer.

"PRIMROSE PATH" A WELL STAGED PICTURE

Universal Photoplay Presented at the Princess Has Big Scenes.

The Universal Broadway feature, "The Primrose Path," presented at the Princess yesterday, was equal, in the opinions of many, to the best picture the Princess has yet offered, including the "Triangles."

The story deals with a wife who makes a woman's supreme sacrifice for her husband, without his knowledge, who, after his recovery, neglects her. A reconciliation comes only after a very strong climax. The cabaret scene is a gorgeous affair, in fact, every scene was well worked out and staged.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Of that "golden voiced singer" Al. H. Wilson who with his clever company will appear at the Myers Theatre Tuesday, March 14, it may be said with the certainty of its affirmation by theatre goers in general that he is one of the most realistic comedians on the stage today and his talents are afforded full scope in his new comic song-play, "As Years Roll On."

The enacting of a character named John Van Zam that calls for a wide range of emotions since the story embraces the career of man from youth to old age with a mingling of comedy and pathos that is treated in a most novel manner. Many claim that much of this pleasing actor's popularity is due to the fact that he can make people laugh with the employment of comedy so clean in its nature that it leaves a lasting impression. Be this as it may—there is no denying the fact that a Wilson performance can relieve the worst case of despondency quicker than any known remedy.

In addition to his new play there is a number of new and melodious songs that prove a great feature. Their very titles suggest a class of music that compares in merit with any songs heretofore presented by the great singer. "Yesterday," "She's Left Me for a Teddy Bear," "As Years Roll On," "Mother Mine," "The Wings of Love," and "The Wings of the Wind."

Constance Collier, a strikingly beautiful woman, appears to the advantage especially in the stage scenes in the grand opera house, which were taken in one of the largest Pacific coast theaters, by the way, the correct Stanley, one of the handsomest leading men on the stage, gives a performance as the young rector which makes his recent alliance with motion pictures all the greater a blessing. "The Tongues of Men" is another Oliver Morosco ten strike.

AT THE APOLLO.

Mary Pickford Surpasses Herself as "The Foundling."

As "The Foundling," one of the most sweetly pathetic characters she has ever impersonated on the screen, Mary Pickford achieves the rare distinction of surpassing herself. The characterization, one of tears and smiles, of pathos and tender sentiment, will undoubtedly rank among the greatest film creations of this untitled mistress of the screen. This latest Paramount picture produced by the Famous Players Film company is the feature attraction at the Apollo on Monday, where Little Mary's countless admirers may see her.

Molly O, the foundling, is the daughter of a struggling artist, at whose death her mother dies. Because of his wonderful love for his wife, the artist hates the child that caused her death, and gives the baby girl to a mothering heart who cares for it. Later, this foster-mother dies, and the baby is housed in a foundling asylum. The tragedy of the wife's death brings to the artist the master touch he has so long sought and in the years to follow wins fame and fortune. One day, he is inspired to paint a picture of the Madonna, of which his dead wife should be the basic figure. But as he undertakes the work he realizes that it will only succeed by the restoration of his last daughter. How the threads of destiny unite these parted souls, bringing to each his first genuine happiness, is absorbingly unfolded in this unique photoplay—not, however, until

THE GAZETTE'S MOTORIST PROBLEM DEPARTMENT

(Published Saturdays.)

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—I have an Oakland Model 32 which has been in the country for about three months. Will you please state the best way to start the car in the morning? I have tried everything and have had the battery in a cool dry place. This, of course, will need changing. Water has been kept to the starting of the motor will be greatly reduced.

Would advise placing battery in the trunk of the car. In the morning when the car is started, the battery should be charged every month when the car is not in use.

Drain all oil from engine crank case and flush with kerosene. The plug in bottom of oil pan should be placed before pouring in kerosene. Crank motor by hand to splash kerosene over parts. Then place plug, but pour in fresh kerosene. Any kerosene remaining will pass out through drain plug opening. When the oil has been changed, the plug should be placed in proper level, crank motor operating under its own power.

If gasoline remains in tank this should be removed and fresh gasoline used. Gasoline remaining in tank for three or four months loses a great deal of its strength. Fill tank with fresh gasoline. Gasoline does not flow through the carburetor, but tank with hand. This will force vapor valve if it is stuck.

Damage cone clutch and clean with kerosene. Then apply some motor oil to leather. Clutch should be disengaged until this treatment oil has soaked into leather. Then run the car for a few minutes. Clutch will be free. Inspect and adjust lubrication necessary in both transmission and differential.

Fill cooling system with water; allow motor to operate for at least one-half hour. Then drain thoroughly and fill with fresh water.

Also test brakes before removing wheels from car and don't forget to fully inflate the tires.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—Have Ford car. Recently I served up a clutch. As motor would not take in high speed. Now I cannot reverse car, as it stops motor as soon as pressure is put on reverse lever. Kindly state cause and remedy in your next issue.

A READER.—When making adjustment to finger clutches only a slight adjustment at each point is necessary. Undoubtedly you have taken to adjust each clutch equally to effect uniform action.

To obtain the best results it is often necessary to make a slight adjustment and then try for results. In this manner the transmission may be placed in much better working order.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—Would be very grateful if you could give me some enlightenment on a question. I have a Ford car and the engine is running at the lowest speed and the gasoline retards the engine does not run smoothly. Therefore a jerky movement when under way. Kindly state cause and remedy in your next issue.

The trouble here would be caused by poor ignition at slow engine speed. It is possible that the spark is turning over slowly sufficient current is not generated to fully excite coils. This may be due to weak magnets. As motor is accelerated more current is generated; hence better results. It is assumed that each cylinder has good compression and that all the valves are correctly adjusted.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—Kindly tell me the best way to use to prevent oil from getting by piston rings to 34-inch groove as a good means to prevent oil getting by piston rings and fouling plugs? Are the "starters" which take up of cable and pulleys to turn engine practical and enduring? G. G.

There are many excellent piston rings on the market. When properly fitted

These will answer the purpose well. It is not permitted through the columns of the paper to recommend any particular type. Any reputable repair station will fully advise regarding the best type of ring to use.

There are a number of cable starters in use, and these seem to be giving good service. The appliances appear to be simple and effective.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—I have a model 70 Chevrolet car, and would like to get more power. Now if I put a gasket 1-16 or 3/16 in thickness under each cylinder, thereby obtaining a large compression space for the gas, would I gain any more power or would I suffer a loss in compression owing to larger compression space?

By placing a gasket under each block the compression will be reduced. In some cases this is beneficial. Credit must be extended to the designer, however, and for this reason the work will be an experiment only. If you wish to increase the compression, since may be accomplished by facing of cylinder block. Also by fitting the space in valve caps.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—I have a Maxwell which has run all summer and fall without any trouble. Last week however, I started to find that the water in radiator boils to the extent of stopping the motor.

The magneto is an alternating current generator, giving from the armature, and can be used for ignition purposes only.

Paris for E. M. C. car may be obtained from the Studebaker Company.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—The spark plugs in my car become saturated with oil and soon the engine will stop. Although the oil is very low and will not run out of the drain in the crank, can it be cleaned out? Kindly state cause and remedy in your next issue.

Perhaps you are using too light an oil or an inferior grade of oil. If the cylinders are worn and a light grade of oil is used you are bound to be troubled.

It may be advisable to install a new set of piston rings the next time you have occasion to service the engine.

In the mean time you would expect using a heavier grade of oil of good quality. The drain plug in the crank case should be cleaned out and the oil changed.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—Will you kindly advise through your columns what is the matter with my car. I have a 1914 Buick. When I throttle down to or below ten miles an hour there is a jerking sound in the transmission. I can feel it with my foot, but when I give it the gas it stops and I cannot hear it any more. If I slow down, if I push out the clutch just a little it does not do it at all. Could the clutch spring be weak and need tightening up? Is a multiple disc clutch and runs in the same oil as my engine?

From what you say it would appear that the trouble lies with the clutch. Without doubt one or more of the springs are broken and need repair. It is also possible that the springs are not adjusted properly, that is to say some of the springs may have more tension on them than the others. This would cause trouble. Would suggest a thorough inspection of the clutch.

HELPFUL HINTS.

Cylinder blocks subject to much vibration and liable to work loose on the crank case through the loosening of the holding down bolts or nuts. A wrench should be applied occasionally to make sure that everything is tight.

The trouble that arises from loose cylinders varies all the way from leakage of oil to a cracked motor.

Because oil has a disintegrating effect on rubber and on cotton and fabric as well, care should be taken to see that the wiring for the electric lighting and engine starting system is well protected. If oil is permitted to remain on the wiring the insulation will be ruined. If it is not, the slight leakage will be exposed and a short circuit will follow.

A frequent and unsuspected loss of power is due to spark plug leakage. Most spark plugs when run very hot and for this reason it will prove an advantage to make an occasional test by dropping a little oil around the packing joints and watching for bubbles. The leakage can usually be stopped by taking up on the packing gland of the plug.

If a car is not equipped with an ex- tension trouble lamp it is well to provide among the accessories a pocket flashlight. For making repairs at night such an accessory is almost indispensable. It is not expensive and will pay for itself many times over in service if much night driving is necessary.

The impression prevails that slow pumping up hard will not enter and thereby cause a great mileage per gallon of gasoline. This is a very common fallacy. It is not the case, and that, on the whole, the underinflated tire will show better mileage of gasoline. The theory being that the soft tire will pump around bumps and road obstructions, while the hard, which means them, thus consuming more power. However the underinflated tire will not give the desired mileage.

NAVY MAY OBTAIN FOOTBALL STARS; UP TO ARMY NOW

Russian Prepares for Olympic Games.
Barrett of Cornell Doped to Enter Naval Academy.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, March 11.—In the midst of war Russia has not forgotten athletic and the possibility of future Olympic games. By order of that department of the government which is planning for the athletic upbuilding of the younger generation of Russians, there arrived in this city recently Hans Anderson, his card bears the inscription:

"Russian trainer in light athletics and chief administrator in physical culture at His Imperial Highness, the war of Russia school officers."

Anderson, who is a Swedish team competitor in the Olympic games at Stockholm in 1912, bears a formidable package of passport recommendations and other official documents, as stamped with Russian and Imperial seals. He explained that owing to the war his country of origin has been seriously cut off from the world. In view of these circumstances the government decided that the time was opportune for a careful study of the American athletic system, which the Russians concede to be the best in the world.

The Swedish trainer has been given a roving commission together with a large expense fund and will investigate American athletics in all its phases during the coming summer. The system used in holding games, developing athletes, raising funds and forms of control in vogue in the Amateur Athletic Union, intercollegiate associations and in city colleges will be the subject of careful study.

Anderson will visit various parts of the country, attend national and intercollegiate contests and interview the leading athletic trainers of the United States before he returns to Russia.

In a recent interview he stated that athletic training, competition and sport will be the next Olympic games will be held in Russia. When asked when and where the next Olympic games will be held Anderson simply smiled and shrugged his shoulders.

Stars for Many.—The announcement that Barrett, of Cornell, is to enter the Naval Academy and Welsh, Stark and Grant of Pennsylvania are to take examinations for entrance to the United States Naval Academy has set the eastern football world agog. A sextet of gridiron stars of this calibre would make the Navy eleven of 1916 invincible, on paper at least.

Four of the six scored more points last fall for their respective colleges than the combined total scores of both the Navy and Army teams. Barrett led the football world with 161 points; Stark scored 123, Grant 107, Welsh 107, Gilroy, Georgetown, 86; Mayer, Virginia, 81; Hastings, Pittsburgh, 76; Cawley, Colby, 88; Wilkinson, Syracuse, 66 and Meahan, Syracuse, 62.

A comparison of the physical records of present day and former classes at Yale discloses some interesting data regarding the improvement in generation by generation in the American man and boy. Comparing the physical statistics of the Yale classes of 1894 and 1915, it is seen that the Freshman of today is one-fifth of a year younger when entering college at 18.5 inches taller; one and one-third pounds lighter and has more than one inch greater chest development than his father.

Still Oliphant can hardly be ex- pected to outscore the sextet headed by Annapolis. It appears as though the Army should prepare. There are still some excellent players available as the following list, together with their 1915 point scores, will show: Taitan, Rutgers, 135; Currey, Vassar, 107; Gilroy, Georgetown, 86; Mayer, Virginia, 81; Hastings, Pittsburgh, 76; Cawley, Colby, 88; Wilkinson, Syracuse, 66 and Meahan, Syracuse, 62.

than with the bunch which finished a poor eighth in the 1915 marathon. Coleman, a holdover, Murphy, from the Pirates, and Pratt, former Red, are lined up for backstop duty. "Dixie" Davis, returned from the White Sox, Marty O'Toole, and Cliff Curtis, holdovers, and Paynter, Mohr, Bruck, and "Lefty" George, new men, are now on the club roster.

In the infield Hulswitt already has Pete Johns, Gerber, last year with the Pirates, Joe Leonard, loaned to Kansas City last year, Stein, a Central league recruit, and Shovin, a holdover. The makeup of the team is still a question.

Demmitt, former International league star, Braichi, Central league graduate, Swanson, Chicago semi-pro, and Shelton and Wright of last year's team are on hand for outfield duty, the first two being reasonably sure of jobs.

Battery candidates will report at Dawson Springs, Ky., tomorrow, and the balance of the team will report there a week later. Exhibition games have been arranged with the Cincinnati Reds and other major league clubs are apparently anxious to avoid Ohio weather in the early part of April.

The Davis Motor Car

A Six Cylinder Automobile Selling Under $1100

The Davis Six is a new car in Wisconsin although it has been sold on the eastern market for years. It is a magnificent roomy car, five to ten inches longer than other cars at the same price, a speed and power flexibility ranging from two to fifty miles per hour and a gasoline consumption of eighteen to twenty miles per gallon. The seating arrangement of the Davis is unusual.

NOTE THESE SPECIFICATIONS: Delco electric starting and lighting system, Continental motor, 120 inch wheel base, Firestone rims, full leather upholstered, Semi-elliptic springs in front and platform type in the rear, Klaxon motor driven electric horn, Stewart Speedometer, Stewart Vacuum gasoline feed.

New body—handsomer, roomier Improved high speed motor Timken axles, front and rear
Signal lamps at sides
Ventilating windshield
Adjustable pedals

These and a score of other refinements feature the New Series Saxon Roadster. It is a bigger and better car. It is a greater value than ever before.

The three speed transmission provides increased flexibility. Saxon roadster is the only car in the world under $400 with this great feature. Timken axles are acknowledged the best made.

The extra set of side lights, the ventilating windshield and the adjustable pedals are conveniences you will readily appreciate.

Throughout the new car all the sterling Saxon features, tried and proved in the service of 30,000 owners have been retained with many added detail refinements.

It has beauty—the handsome, well finished streamline body in the latest automobile fashion—the only really good looking low priced car today.

It has economy—Saxon Roadster is today, as always, the most economical car ever built. It makes 30 miles per gallon of gasoline—100 to 150 miles on a pint of oil—$500 to 5000 miles on a $7.95 tire. It costs only half a cent a mile to run. Therefore, it is the world's economy champion—for no other car can equal this average. Come and see it.

BEST OF TRACK MEN WILL COMPETE AT PHILADELPHIA

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Philadelphia, March 11.—Some of the greatest track men in the country will compete here today in the annual Meadow Brook club indoor meet at Convention hall in which the Millrose, Irish American and New York athletic clubs of New York have entered their entire teams. Joe Loomis, the Chicago speed master, Ray Morse, Howard Drew, the negro, Naah and Brewer of Washington also are among the entrants. Keenest rivalry exists between the New York clubs, alone and the dash events especially are expected to bring out star showings.

He doubts that a relay team could be developed in time to make a good showing at the Philadelphia classic.

WOMAN'S PAGE

Marrying for Money

MRS. EVA LEONARD

Driven to Bankruptcy's Verge, Jacob Townsend Suffers Physical Collapse.

"What is it, Daddy?" asked Jacob Townsend, anxiously, as he looked down at the letter on his desk and passed his hand over his eyes in a dazed sort of way. For answer he motioned to the letter.

"Chicago, Ill., Oct. 11, 1915—Mr. J. C. Townsend, Esq., Canton, Kan. Dear Sir:

"In reply to your letter of October 2, I regret to say that we will not be able to extend the time of payment of your account.

"Sincerely yours, J. C. Townsend, Esq., Canton, Kan. Christmas order will be held up till payment is made.

Very truly yours, JOHNSON & PEETS."

Dudley laid the letter down and his father said: "That is the first time I was ever refused credit in the thirty-five years that I have been in business."

"Don't take it to heart so. It's the fault of the unsettled condition of business generally. You know what a time you have to collect. I suppose they are in the same boat."

"The point is I cannot make the payment," replied Jacob. "How are we to get goods for our Christmas trade?"

"Can't you borrow somewhere?" asked the junior partner.

"I have not been able to so far. The bank I got at the bank last fall is not paid off, so I can't very well ask for more," was the weary reply.

"You are not fit to think about business today. Go home and rest a while and things will look clearer," urged Dudley, really worried about his father.

Jacob rose and reached for his hat and started for the door. George came up and Dudley whispered: "I am going with him. He is not well enough to go alone. Read that letter," he added, as he hurried after his father.

Learning on Dudley's arm, Jacob slowly made his way home. He sank into a chair in the hall and Dudley hurried to the kitchen for a reviving drink. With a small tray in his hand he had started back when he heard a heavy thud. Dropping the tray on the table he fairly ran to the hall. His father was stretched on the floor. Ortrude and Mrs. Tupper came running from the house. Mrs. Tupper knelt on the floor listening for a heart beat. He rose very pale and motioned to Tupper to help carry him upstairs.

Leaving up the doctor," he said coldly to Ortrude, who stood pale and trembling in the parlor door. "I am afraid it is a stroke of paralysis."

Dudley and the housekeeper carried the man back to his room. He got him to bed. Ortrude crept up stairs and into the room as soon as she was assured that the doctor was on his way. She opened the door and dispatched her own errands and assumed all charge of the patient. When everything possible had been done Tupper stole from the room and beckoned to Ortrude to follow. Leaving Dudley sitting by the bed holding his father's hand and counting the feeble pulse, Ortrude waited in the parlor for the doctor, looking anxiously down at the man.

Letters may be addressed to Wm. A. BRADY, M. D., in care of the Gazette

TEACHERS, SCHOOL-ROOMS AND TUBERCULOSIS

The teachers suffer from overcrowding and inadequately ventilated school rooms as much as the school children do. Dr. Thomas D. Wood, writing in the Journal of the New York School Teachers' Association, declares that the ventilation of the school rooms is a hazardous, there being a higher mortality rate from tuberculosis among teachers than among housekeepers and stone-cutters. And, incidentally, he says, "one of the reasons why the teachers have so much tuberculosis is that the school is such an unsanitary place. Our schools, relatively for their purpose, you must remember, are less sanitary today than our states prisons, our almshouses, our asylums, our hospitals."

Will remember all the words I use, please—than our stables, barns, pigpens and chicken houses."

And what makes the schools unsanitary? Faulty ventilation.

Why can't all school rooms be well ventilated?

Because the "old women" on the school board, the board of health, and sometimes on the teaching staff of the school, don't like the idea of more fresh air than the custom of years has warranted.

Dr. John B. Todd of Syracuse has found a way to obviate all the usual objections to good sanitation, and a number of public schools in Syracuse and other places have adopted the Todd idea with the happiest results. The teachers report that all odors disappear from the school rooms, that the children have little or no coryza (head colds) and do much better work than they did under the fan system of ventilation. Besides, Todd's innovation saves a considerable sum per year in power required to drive the fans.

The Todd idea is simply the use of cloth screens in place of windows. Cypress frames are made cheaply to fit the windows (on the blind stops). The frames are covered with unbleached cotton cloth (black cloth for more exposed places). The screens are placed in the window frames outside the lower sash, which is then raised. Each school room should have about one square foot of screen per pupil. Such screens can be made for $1 or $1.50 apiece. In time the cloth becomes soiled and may be renewed. The cloth filters out the dust from the air. It breaks the air currents. It allows a continuous air exchange and it keeps the inside air fairly comfortable.

The Todd idea is available to country schools as well as city schools. Likewise, it is available to private homes. We could install it for bedrooms and for work rooms.

Heart and Home PROBLEMS

—By—
MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to MRS. THOMPSON
in care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am just sixteen years of age and chum with a girl the same age. She has many boy friends, but she gets acquainted with them by being on the streets. I don't like this, but now, but I did it once and was taught a lesson. The party had no respect for me or the whatever for me. Do you think it is nice to flirt on the streets?

(2) My friend wears pink stockings and very short skirts and I don't like this. I have a great deal of attention from the fellows when I am with her. I am with her. I don't like this and neither does my mother. How can I keep her from wearing them? I told her how much attention she attracts, but she won't stop.

(3) There is a very nice fellow who has asked me many times to go out with him, but I have always refused because I am too young and my mother objects. I have been years old and a gentleman. Do you think it would be all right to go out once in a while? A HIBED GIRL.

(4) A girl certainly should not flirt on the streets. If she is in love with a boy, she should wait until she is married. Flirting on the streets is a disgrace.

(5) Pink stockings are not worn with short skirts. A girl who wears pink stockings and short skirts is a disgrace.

(6) I think you had better give up this girl and find a more respectable friend.

(7) Don't disobey your mother. In a year or two you will be old enough to go places with boys. I should think it would be all right to let the boy call at your home once in a while if your mother does not object.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a brute and have black and brown curly hair. I am going with a nice young man and like him very much.

But he gets on my nerves by trying to make me jealous. When we are together and he meets a girl he seems to like pretty well he seems to forget me. Do you think he is trying to quit me or to make me jealous? He is very jealous and has said so and then tried to get me to say I was, but I would not. The other night I asked my friend to go to a party with me. He said he would go, but he said he couldn't go and then later I heard he was just crazy to go, but I had invited some one else. He likes me as all my friends say he does, why did he act that way? I am afraid he doesn't like me.

When the boy seems to forget you for some other girl he probably does; his interest is in her and he is rude enough to show it. Don't believe what people say. His actions are a better indication of the way he feels toward you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it proper for a boy to put on a lady's overcoat?

(2) Is it all right for a school teacher to go with one of his scholars?

(3) What kind words should a boy say to a girl if he wishes to quit her?

(4) Is there harm in playing cards if you do not gamble and if you play in good company?

(5) What is the best general in the Civil War, Lee or Grant?

(6) I am fifteen years old and I am six feet tall. Am I too young to have a girl friend? A boy accept a girl if she is crazy about him?

THANK YOU.

(1) Yes.

(2) It is all right if he wants to and if he is equal to the comments made about it.

(3) He should not seek her company and if she asks him to come over or go somewhere he should say he cannot. Such a position is awkward for a boy, but if he persistently says he cannot do what she wants him to, she will finally understand.

(4) I don't think there is.

(5) It is a matter of opinion.

(6) Yes.

(7) Not unless he likes her, too.

WHEN BOY SIGHT

Many interesting letters have come to me in answer to the letter friend's question whether one should invariably try to stop a street fight before it gets into a row. I am sorry that I could not use them all.

"As you say, to fight for a principle," writes one letter friend, "stretches some fine chords. But isn't it a little bit of a stretch to go to places with boys? I should think it would be all right to let the boy call at your home once in a while if your mother does not object."

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a brute and have black and brown curly hair. I am going with a nice young man and like him very much.

hands God has given him for his self-defense. I do not believe in fighting among boys and men usually, but there are occasions when a boy or man cannot be a gentleman and not fight. I think boys should be taught never to fight—it takes the backbone out of a boy for the time when he may have to do it. He should be taught when to fight and when not to; there are many little insults and annoyances which may be overlooked, but which do not admire the man who can use his hands it necessary to protect the good name of mother, sister or friend, also the sterling principles of his own manhood."

She Has Reason to Hate Boys' Fights

Again, speaking about boys fighting, my youngest brother, who is about twelve, got into a fight with another about the same age but stronger. The only reason for the fight was that he had hit his brother on the nose with a very hard broken nose. What that boy suffered a doctor can tell you. My parents had said that if he hit a boy he would be sent to the hospital for a long time. My brother was very angry and he would have been a handsome man. Consequently I stop every pair of boys fighting, telling them that fighting in anger may bring serious results.

A Man Says, "The Principle Involved Is Law or Lawlessness."

"As to boy fights," writes a very logical person, "inasmuch as the law does not make any more provision for private boys to punish others than in the case of men, and inasmuch as fighting is unlawful, I cannot see why children should have a right to do the unlawful thing any more than men have. The principle involved is lawlessness; it is boys are to have the right to meet out violent and unlawful punishment to those whom they think deserve it, why not men?"

with cold water, bring slowly to boiling point, let simmer about four hours until tender. After cooking two hours add one quart of cider. Allow ham to cool in liquor; remove from liquor; skim, sprinkle with sugar and bread crumbs; put dashes of paprika over ham and insert a clove in each dash. Bake one hour and serve with elder sauce.

Cider Sauce—Melt three tablespoons butter, add four tablespoons sugar and pour in gradually, stirring constantly. Two cups ham liquor; add four tablespoons cider, a little salt and pepper and dash of paprika.

Bubble and Squeak—Chop cold beef, sausage, ham, and onion with salt and pepper and fry in butter. Add some cold boiled beef, slice it thin, pepper it well and broil it. Then pile sliced cabbage in the center of a platter. Arrange slices of beef around and serve immediately.

English Head Cheese—Take four pigs legs, the part above foot joint and lean part from head; put in kettle and cover with boiling water; cook until meat falls from bone. Chop meat coarsely, season with salt and pepper; after skimming fat from mold add meat; boil up once; put in mold and set away to harden.

Jellied Rabbit—Cut rabbit into eight pieces, boil in about quart of water; when meat falls from bones remove fat liquor to cool and remove fat; dissolve one-half box gelatin in one pint water and add season. Boil five minutes, strain and add chopped meat; garnish with parsley.

Deviled Kidneys—Take eight lamb kidneys, split and put a little butter in each hollow; mix teaspoon of prepared mustard, one of minced parsley, one-half teaspoon of meat stock or extract; salt and pepper; taste. Spread mixture on kidneys; add layer of cracker crumbs and bake for fifteen minutes in moderate oven. Baste often.

CLEVELAND SOCIALISTS PLAN A CO-OPERATING DISTRIBUTION OF FOOD

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Cleveland, March 11.—Cleveland Socialists plan a direct assault on the high cost of living here tomorrow by organizing a co-operative company to distribute food and other staples at wholesale prices. It is planned to join the 1000 Socialist families here into a compact organization which will buy supplies through one warehouse, the warehouse being financed by themselves. Through this organization, the Socialists hope to control more than $1,000,000 worth of home supplies. The plan, it is figured, will save the members about $200,000 a year.

The Bohemian Socialists' organization, the pioneer in Cleveland in co-operative buying, organized four years ago with a membership of 165 families, will be used as a nucleus of the larger organization. To finance the new organization stock will be sold in $5 and $10 shares.

It is not planned to open a store. Instead there will be a central warehouse. Routes for delivery will be mapped and wagons and autos will go out weekly to visit and restock homes of members of the organization. In England and Scotland similar organizations have been in operation for years and their annual business runs into millions of dollars.

SAVE YOUR HAIR

You are getting bald! The appearance of dandruff and loose hair on your clothing or in the comb are all the proof you need. Dandruff kills the hair, a little at a time, maybe—but kills it. The contagion dandruff must be summarily routed out if you are to escape that final and inevitable result—total baldness.

There must be no delay. The regular and intelligent use of Newbro's Herpicide should begin at once. The first application will remove all traces of dandruff, stimulate health in the hair follicles of the scalp and prevent the hair from falling out. Herpicide will save your hair—save you from chronic baldness. It has a delightful odor and is most comforting and cooling to the head.

METHODS OF GERMAN ALLIANCE REVEALED

WISCONSIN MEN WERE INFLUENTIAL IN EFFORT TO BRING PRESSURE TO BEAR ON WILSON.

BREWERS IN SUPPORT?

Brewers' Association Claimed to Have Financed Organization in This State—Influence Felt in Legislature.

By Ellis B. Cusher.

Milwaukee, March 11.—The New York World this week published a letter from Leo Stern, head of the German-American Alliance in this state, to an eastern official of that organization, and a correspondence indicating that the German effort to make the capital at Washington and hamstring the president of the United States had its active workers in Wisconsin. The Milwaukee Journal on Wednesday night printed the details so I will not take space with them.

Blames Brewers' Association.

Months ago a prominent Republican, with a German name, who has been honored by the voters of Wisconsin, told me that the German-American Alliance was financed by the many German brewers. He said that the brewers can be used for the support of beer and saloons, and he told me, further, that the noisy pro-German propaganda was mostly due to this influence. He said that the papers printed in the German language, who think their own interests will be served by stirring up pro-German prejudices and activities. He added the significant information that but for the German clergy, German language newspapers would have a rapidly diminishing patronage, and persistence. This man is a politician in the Free Press, and has since been a speaker at at least one German-American Alliance meeting in this city. I have no doubt that he is telling the truth, for another Republican candidate for state office has told me the same thing. I have no doubt that he is telling the truth, for another Republican candidate for state office has told me the same thing. I have no doubt that he is telling the truth, for another Republican candidate for state office has told me the same thing.

Mr. C. S. Goldsborough, assistant to President Roosevelt, tells the attitude in the fact that the Erie was also "in" in putting on all steel postal cars and "in" in the trip to Europe. This is a statement of last week that although the Erie has a history, as the first line between New York City and Lake Erie, it still keeps well to the front in all the developments of railroading that make for good service and economical results. There came within the past two weeks a tie-up of freight such as the Erie has hitherto escaped and which led to an embargo, but the inevitable, that has been postponed so well, has put the manager on his mettle and there is an effort to get the line to get a clean-up. The lack of vessel service, the Jersey terminal has been the main cause, which is beyond the control of the Erie. It is interesting to note in this connection that Wisconsin has kept crowding business at the Milwaukee office all the time, and in spite of the hard luck, Erie business exceeds all previous Wisconsin records so far in 1916.

Short Notes.

The German-Austrian bazaar, which closed Tuesday night after a six-day run, was a great success. It was held to raise money for the widows and orphans in those countries. The entire Auditorium building was in use and the cost of the entertainment is reckoned at about $30,000 gross receipts, $14,000, and attendance 120,000.

It looks as if the supreme court of Wisconsin might be made solidly Republican if the voters are willing to surrender the free non-partisan traditions of that bench to any one of the many Republican lawyers who are willing to sacrifice them. Mr. Guy D. Goff did himself credit by retiring early from that sort of a cheap scramble. If the bar of this state had any dignity left it will do well to get behind a good Democrat and put a question on cheap politics.

STRICT TRAVELING RULES IN EGYPT'S CANAL ZONE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Cairo, Egypt, March 10.—Egypt is still very much in the dark as to what is going on along its frontier. Rumors of the most sensational kinds are circulating, but it is no doubt that the military authorities are running no risks as far as the defense of the Canal is concerned.

The Canal zone was long ago made a restricted area, the most restricted military sense. Any person desiring to travel by railway to any station within the Canal zone is required to obtain a special permit which is only obtained after searching inquiries on the part of the military officials. The permit may be either temporary—for one trip only—or permanent—for use as required to pay frequent visits to Port Said or for business reasons. Any permit is revocable on the instant at the will of the officials.

In the case of foreigners, application must first be made to the proper consular authority, which is then forwarded to the Public Security department for investigation. Before returning from any place in the Canal zone the traveler must obtain a return permit, properly stamped by the Governor of Port Said or Suez or the Mayor of Ismailia. Similar restrictions apply to persons residing within the Canal zone and desirous of traveling to any station on the line.

In many ways the Canal zone is ideal for defensive purposes. The railway runs along the west bank of the Canal from Port Said for sixty or seventy miles. There has been intense activity throughout the entire canal belt throughout the winter.

A Story Of Suffering

Told by a Janesville Man.

Here is a story of severe suffering that many people go through day by day without relief. But why endure it? Read Mr. Wright's words and you will realize that much suffering does not have to be endured. The story of merit like the following is what you have been looking for.

A. S. Wright, railroad engineer, 321 N. Chatham St., Janesville, says: "The jarring and shaking of the train might be hard on my back and kidneys, so it's no wonder I began to feel that something was wrong. My kidneys acted irregularly. I had severe backaches and pains across the small of my back. It hurt me to get up or down. Almost all railroad men know about Dean's Kidney Pills so, of course, I used some, too. In a short time they put a stop to all the pains and made my kidneys act as they should."

CRITICS OF SURVEY ANSWERED BY ALLEN

Investigator of State University Makes Reply to Persons Who Ridiculed His Report.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 11.—William H. Allen, who conducted the university survey, has been heard from again. This time he has issued a circular which is being mailed generally in Wisconsin, answering criticisms of his survey. He entitled the rejoinder, "Smashing the Looking Glass." One of the authorities quoted is Senator Ackley of Chippewa Falls.

As to my mind Prof. Mead's article on Madison in the Survey for Dec. 26 epitomizes three special diseases of national-wide importance, says Dr. Allen. "First, Wisconsin's inability to get the truth about its university. Second, the state's incapacity to deal with other states' investigations with respect to 'personal' conducted investigations about Wisconsin. Third, a method of investigation which inherently must be a failure. Reports of truth or partial truth are not the result of a survey. The survey would tell you what sources he consulted about Wisconsin—who and what and how you would be liable to come to miss, describe, misread and misinterpret."

"Misrepresentation or overstatement by university officers is called 'Weismannism' in Wisconsin, after a famous biologist of the university signed 'Earl B. Weismann' as an outside, impartial analyst. Time: political campaign of 1914. Content: purpose to divert taxpayers' attention from the university's expenditures to popular services. The tactics were unknown to regents, paid for by the university as proposed by the president, and syndicated by the chairman of the university trustees. The survey is for 'color' and claim by university officials; and written by the university's official press agent, whose name was not mentioned."

Allen says that the university buildings are not used as much as they should be. His article is long, explanatory and quotes many documents. It is a defense of his survey of the university.

"One of the tragedies of Wisconsin is that genuine work by the faculty and students is subordinated to bragging and Weismannism, politics, deception and Allen in conclusion. During the last session of the legislature Dr. Allen was connected with the executive office."

ITALY TO MAKE CHANGE IN EMIGRATION POLICY WHEN WAR IS SETTLED

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Rome, March 10.—After the close of the present war all the "Little Italies" of America are to become centers of real Italian culture.

While Italy, in announcing this pending change in her emigration policy, frankly admits the idea was inspired by Germany's policy towards the German-Americans in the United States, yet she does not wish it understood that she has any intention of putting up Italian culture in competition with the real German "Kultur" in America. All she wants is to raise its standard and derive the same benefits from Italian emigrants in America that she feels Germany has derived from hers. She believes Italian culture for Italians will do what German culture has done for Germans.

The present war has demonstrated the extent to which European nations in a general national crisis can depend on their sons and daughters who have emigrated to the United States, for perfectly legitimate help.

With Italy's entrance into the present war, 300,000 Italians returned from the United States to fight. They gave themselves, but in few cases have they given anything more, for they had nothing more to give.

On the other hand, Italy believes that Germans in the United States, most of them prosperous compared with the average Italian-American, have been able to do much for Germany. And she is convinced that it is because Germany has for years systematically kept in close touch with them, promoting among the patriotic and other societies and keeping ever aflame the fire of patriotism and nationalism.

Italy admits she has paid little attention to her sons and daughters abroad. They have formed "Little Italies" in America, registered by Mother Italy, the spirit of Italian nationalism and culture kept alive only by some occasional Italian opera or an occasional Italian lecturer, who might happen to wander their way.

Italy's future emigration policy is to have two new aspects. The first is to do everything possible to equip the emigrant before he leaves, that he may win prosperity like the Germans; and secondly to keep alive the spirit of Italian culture, patriotism and nationalism in every "Little Italy" in America.

The method includes making it possible for Italian children in America to have an Italian as well as an American education. Professors are to be sent from Italy and specialists of all kinds in Italian culture are to be employed to live in these "Little Italies."

Italy has no intention of rendering her emigrants disloyal to the United States. She proposes through Italian culture to enable them to attain the same degree of material prosperity that German-Americans have given to the German-American.

CENTENARIAN PASSES AWAY AT CHIPPEWA FALLS HOME

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chippewa Falls, Wis., March 10.—The death of John Morning Sr., occurred Thursday, a few miles north of here, at his country home in this country. He was the oldest man in northern Wisconsin, being 119 years old. He was born in Ireland. He located four miles north of this city sixty years ago and logged for a number of years for the late Frederick Weyerhaeuser. For the past eighteen years he has resided on a farm near New Auburn. He is survived by six children. In spite of his 119 years he was quite a vigorous man and possessed all his faculties until this winter, when he was seized with an attack of the grippe, which gradually weakened him.

RUSSIANS PLACE BIG WAR LOAN ON JAPANESE BANKERS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tokio, March 11.—Russia has placed a war loan of 50,000 yen or about $250,000,000 with Japanese bankers. The operation is really for the purpose of paying in part for the quantities of war munitions which the Japanese government and private armaments are furnishing the Russian government.

The loan takes the form of Russian treasury bills in denomination of 5,000 and 10,000 yen and the rate of interest is 5 per cent. The bonds are redeemable in one year. The bonds will be issued at the rate of 95. The subscription list will be open to the public, the syndicate of Japanese bankers interested in the loan does not seem to expect general support from the public, believing that the subscribers will be confined to the banking and insurance circles. In consequence an understanding has been reached between the syndicate and the Bank of Japan that the latter will accept the bills as mortgage.

Side Lights on the Circus Business

By D. W. WATT

Former Manager Burr Robbins and Later Treasurer of Adam Forepaugh Circuses.

(Copyrighted.)

A few days ago I received a letter from an old friend by the name of F. C. Cooper, who is now located in Chicago. Cooper and I traveled together with the Forepaugh show in 1885 and '86, but I had not seen him nor heard from him in many years. He is now general contractor and route agent of the Coup & Lent shows, and Mr. Cooper said that Janesville was on the route and that they would show here early in the season, and unless the route was changed they would exhibit in this city on May 6.

While the Coup & Lent show is not among the largest, it is a three-ring show of high quality, carrying a fair sized menagerie, and the ring performance is as good as the best for the size. They have a school of Rhoda Royal's performing horses, and tented from the circus, and a first class performance. And as Uncle John Stowe used to say in making his announcements with the Burr Robbins show, "If we give you a good crowd they'll give you a good show."

Already most of the large shows have fixed their opening dates. The Burr Robbins show will open April 1 at Madison Square Garden, New York, and the Ringling show will open at the Coliseum in Chicago on April 15.

With a cold north wind and flakes of snow in the air, the body of the late Al. Ringling was removed from the vault in the cemetery to the new mausoleum. The metal casket was covered with a beautiful floral blanket from Mrs. Ringling and there was a short service by Rev. H. Mueller, both at the cemetery vault and the mausoleum. The bearers were J. Van Ornum, E. G. Marriott, T. W. English, Dr. G. T. Thuerer, J. S. Briscoe, F. J. Warwell, John Akee and Joseph Miller. Mrs. Ringling, her brother, William Morris and many other friends were present.

The mausoleum stands on a ridge of land on the west side of the cemetery, with the door to the east. The base of the structure from east to west is about fifteen feet and from north to south about twelve and a half feet. The base is slightly larger than the top, and the covering is a single stone weighing about twelve tons. The stone is thicker in the center, so that the rainfall will flow away. Across the front, over the door are the words "Al. C. Ringling." The first three letters are larger than the last word. The two doors are of bronze, there being lead glass at the top. There is a monogram, and the one at the right containing the Latin inscription, "Spes mea in Deo est," which means "My hope is in God." There is a step leading to the doors and on each side a granite urn. The whole is built of Vermont gray granite and cost about $10,000. S. A. Collins of Reedsburg was the builder. There are three crypts extending from east to west, one above the other, and Mr. Ringling's body was placed in the lower one. He died on January 1, 1916, and the ceremony was just two months after his death.

The mystery surrounding the plans for the coming season of Col. William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) was dissolved today by Edward Arlington of Miller Bros. & Arlington's 101 Ranch show. The new organization is to be known as the Buffalo Bill and 101 Ranch Wild West Show Combined.

The feature of the show will be a genuine, well-prepared spectacle. Bill personally appearing in the spectacle, in which also by virtue of a special authorization from the war department, a squad of cavalry and artillery from eight different army posts will be seen, the men being a special six months' furlough to join the show for the period.

A number of Col. Cody's former associates will again be connected with him, including Major Burke and Johnny Baker, the latter having in charge the staging of the big military spectacle.

The show will open at Ponca City, Okla., May 25, under the big show title, "Preparedness."

No small measure of credit is due for generously turning over to Mr. Arlington the use of the Buffalo Bill title, as well as his option or contract with Col. Cody for his personal services, thus making possible the consolidation of the two organizations.

It is interesting to note that the two big shows, Sells-Floto and 101 Ranch, through a series of deals, not one of which had any connection with the other, have virtually changed features. The Sells-Floto having secured the Sells-Floto title with the 101 last season, while the 101 will have Col. Cody, last season with Sells-Floto.

MINNESOTA STUDENTS SORE AT REPORTS OF FACULTY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Minneapolis, Minn., March 11.—Criticism of the ability of faculty members as newspaper reporters and editors was still heard on the campus of the University of Minnesota today. The murmurs resulted from the work of the instructors in publishing for a time "The Minnesota Daily," the university newspaper.

News stories, the students contend, were put aside by the faculty to make room for personal views. Particular exception was taken to an unsigned article which declared that "senatorial rubbish" is a product of co-education.

"The educational system in America," the article said, "are still in an experimental state. For example, co-education has not yet proven itself an unqualified success. Many level-headed people have doubted the wisdom of such a system."

"Certain growing tendencies at the University of Minnesota have added materially to the seriousness of these doubts. Beauty contests and balloting for 'ideal husbands' and other sentimental rubbish has done much to damn the system."

"When young men and women, associated in a supposedly intellectual pattern, spend their time in hectic jealousies and amorous rivalries, self-consciously selecting the most beautiful in their midst, preening themselves and showing their tail-feathers like so many absurd peacocks, then surely we come perilously near treading the primrose path to the everlasting bonfire prepared for the silly."

"Such sensational foolishness exposes us to the ridicule of the whole country, for Minnesota becomes advertised as a state matrimonial agency. Small wonder that under the circumstances many men and women turn eastward to institutions less epicene, where mixed pink teas are almost unknown and week-ends of ogling frivolity are non-existent."

"Why should our athletics decline when many of our men are nourished on Out-Tree embellishments and the 5 o'clock cream puff, when dances and receptions take the place of baseball and the sturdier forms of exercise?"

"Luckily the men of the professional schools are tied to the mast of their work and the siren songs come only faintly to their ears. They must look on with amused wonder at the chatter of Vanity Fair."

"Some people will stoutly deny the allegations we have made. Among them will be those who have succeeded in getting married under this system. Naturally they throw over the roseate flush of their success."

Never Before Such An Instantaneous And Sensational Success

From every state in the Union we hear of the amazing success of the latest Overland—the $615 model.

At the New York and Chicago Automobile Shows—the two great national automobile events of the year—the $615 Overland was the most widely discussed model exhibited.

And why not? An electrically started and electrically lighted completely equipped Overland with four-inch tires for only $615!

Is there any wonder this car took the whole country by storm?

Season after season for seven years we have experienced one great success after another.

But this one tops them all.

No other achievement in the history of the entire industry parallels this record.

It stands out alone—boldly—conspicuously—unapproached.

Never before has an automobile success been so rapid, so definite and so sweeping.

The $615 Overland has made history. It marks the entrance of a new automobile value—a car complete in every sense of the term at a price which was hitherto thought impossible.

Yet here it is—a powerful five-passenger touring car complete for only $615.

Note that word "complete."

This means electric starter and electric lights, electric horn, magnetic speedometer—in fact, every necessary item. Nothing is lacking. There are no "extras" to buy.

Note that the motor is the very latest en bloc design—the last word in fine engineering.

In addition note that the tires are four-inch size. This is another big advantage. Many cars costing more have smaller tires.

Note that the rear springs are the famous cantilever type. Another advantage. Cantilever springs mean the utmost in riding comfort.

Note the headlight dimmers—the electric control buttons on steering column—demountable rims and one-man top. These are all big advantages.

This newest Overland is light in weight, easy to handle and very economical to operate.

It's just the car the world has been waiting for.

It's large enough for the whole family—moderately priced; within the reach of the majority—economical to maintain—built of the best quality materials—snappy, stylish and speedy—and complete in every sense.

In short, it is just another striking example of how our larger production enables us to build a bigger and better car and still keep the price within reason.

You'll want one, so order it now.

Don't wait, debate or argue with yourself. See that your order is placed immediately.

Then in a few days you and your whole family will be driving your own car.

Remember it comes complete—only $615!

A NOVEL

By GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

Copyright by The Century Co.

Alx face lit up. "Oh, that is Alan," the judge's eyes twinkled. "Yes," he said, "and then Alan went off to sleep like a shot and Fleuret remembered an engagement. The whole club's cheered up. The club didn't know what was the matter with itself, but it knows now. It was missing Alan after he had come back."

Alan had written to Mrs. J. Y. that he was planning to motor from town to Red Hill. Clem, as Mrs. J. Y.'s deputy, had answered his letter, promising him a warm and long welcome at Maple House. She gave him a way-bill. "It's the simplest way-bill in the world," she wrote, "out of town and along the road till you come to the river, then up the valley till the bald top of East Mountain stands up from the left. Climb the mountain, and there the old church will lead you home."

The old church will lead you home," Alan repeated to himself as he let his faded body lounge across the taut and trusted cushions and brought to take up the bumps. His thoughts raced ahead of him to Red Hill. In memory he plodded over dusty roads and through mossy lanes, swam, fished and loafed, wept and laughed. He was going back to the cradle of all his emotions.

The wind and the motion of the car made him sleepy. He dozed. He awoke to see East Mountain looming in the distance. Steadily the car drew into its lee. Alan sighted a climbing road and called directions to the driver. From the bare top of the mountain he made out the old church, a white speck on a far-away hill. He stood up and traced the course they were to follow. He was filled with a strange excitement. "Never mind the bumps—open her up," he ordered, and sat down and closed his eyes.

Long lane was as cool as memory and as balmy with the twining odors of birch and sassafras and laurel as childhood's recollection. Alan drew a long, full breath and then the car ran out on to the top of Red Hill, swerved to the right and turned in under the low-hanging limbs of the maples.

It was early afternoon. The old homestead was very still. As the car drew up at the curb a girl rose from a deep chair on the veranda and stepped forward. Alan caught his breath and stared. He felt himself a little boy. Nance, a mere rosebud of a girl, stood before him and smiled at his bewildered face. "You're Uncle Alan, aren't you?" The soft voice sustained him, but the words brought him to himself—made him feel suddenly older by a generation. Then he smiled back at her and chafed, "You have been busy since I saw you last. Have I the honor of presenting myself to Miss Sterling?"

"The same," replied the girl, laughing, "and your niece."

"Come. That's enough. Don't rub it in. Besides, you're only niece by courtesy. By the family tree we're cousins."

"All right. I'll be a cousin to you if you like it better," remarked Nance, junior, demurely.

Alan had sprung out. He caught her hands and kissed her. Her fresh mouth brushed his cheek.

"Yes, I like it better," he said. "It's some fun kissing a cousin."

Nance, junior, snatched away her hands and dashed into the house. "Mother, Clem, he's here. The—Cousin Alan's come."

"Ssh!" said Alan, holding up his hand. "What's that noise?"

Clem laughed. "It's the captain," she said. "Listen."

In the silence the rumbling became voiciferous. "Bring him up here. Bring him up here, dammit."

"You'd better go quickly," remarked Nance, junior. "He's begun to swear and mother doesn't like us to hear it."

Alan hurried into the house and up to the captain's room. The grown-ups followed but stopped below and waited. Nance, junior, remained to direct the chauffeur to the barn.

"Excuse me, miss," said that worthy, "but Mr. Wayne hasn't had a bite to eat since seven this morning. You might not think to ask him, you see, so I thought I'd tell you."

"I see," replied the young lady, and added with ready wit and a smile, "Just find the kitchen and tell the cook."

Alan found the captain propped on many pillows. His bulging eyes had the same old glare, his close-cropped hair still made an effort, though feeble, to insurgency, but his corpulence was gone. He had collapsed at last and was bedridden after a severe stroke.

"Huh!" was his greeting.

Alan sat down beside the bed. "How do you do, sir?"

"Do? I do all right. It's the liquor in this country that's gone off, sir. Corked whisky. That's all that's left. I'll show you, Alan." And he roared, after a preliminary puff, "Two whiskeys."

Mrs. Wayne appeared. "Now, captain," she said softly. "What's this? Two at a time? You're getting better."

The captain subsided. "One for Alan," he grunted.

The drinks came. Alan welcomed his. He was tired and faint after the long journey. The captain gazed on his own glass defiantly but ordered the maid to set it on the table at his side.

Alan waited long for him to take it up, and then he saw that the captain had fallen asleep. Alan sipped his drink. The captain was right, it was marvelous. But Alan remembered that he had thrown away his last cigarette for the same reason. He sighed.

In spite of the judge, Alx was feeling very lonely, abandoned, unloved. She sat on the little veranda at the back of the town house and day-dreamed. Across her knee lay the morning paper. A word caught her eye. Eleatic. Half unconsciously she read: "Among the arrivals by the Eleatic . . . Hon. Percy Collingford."

Collingford! She started to her feet and then with what seemed a perceptible click her mind repeated, "Eleatic." She sat down again. The hand that held the paper was trembling. She sat for a long time looking at her hand. The telephone bell rang, but she did not hear it. Old John came and stood beside her.

"Mr. Collingford telephones to know if you are in town."

A frightened gleam showed in Alx's eyes. It passed and a flame of color came into her pale cheeks. "Yes," she said. "I am at home. Tell him I will see him at any time today."

Collingford lost no time. When he arrived Alx was still sitting on the veranda. She received him there. He came upon her with a rush—like a fresh breeze. "What luck!" he cried. "Really in town on a hot summer's day?"

Which is it? Frocks or the dentist?" Alx rose and held out her hand. A faint smile came to her face, lingered a moment and passed. "I am glad you have come," she said, and then passed. Her eyes wavered. Was she glad he had come?

Collingford caught her mood. "Just what do you mean by that?" he asked gravely.

"Alx's eyes came back to his face. 'I—I don't know,' she stammered.

They sat down. Collingford dropped his hat and stick and leaned forward. A dull color burned in his cheeks. "Alx," he said, "has—has anything happened?"

"No," said Alx. "Not what you mean. Gerry is alive. He has written. He says he is coming back—some time."

Collingford sprang to his feet, his eyes flashing.

"Some time! Did he really write that? Some time?"

There was a petulant look about Alx's mouth that belonged to an Alx of long ago. She tried to shake it off with her mood. "No," she said dully, after a pause. "He didn't write just that but it amounts to the same thing. He wrote but he has not come."

Collingford paced up and down the little veranda, his arms crossed and one hand pulling nervously at his moustache. He came to a stop before Alx and stood looking down at her. His eyes eager but questioning. "Well," he said.

Alx made a little gesture of despair with her two hands. "I—I don't know," she repeated. Then, quite quietly, she began to cry.

Collingford caught her hands and drew her to her feet. He put his arms around her. She laid her head against his shoulder and sobbed. Collingford's heart was beating furiously. His arms trembled. He longed to scratch her to him, but he only held her firmly and patted her back. Some instinct told him that this was not the moment of possession.

When Alx could talk he knew that his instinct was true. "Oh," she said, "what a little beast I am! Unfair to you, unfair to myself."

She disengaged herself and sat down. With a tiny square of cambric she dabbed at her eyes.

"Here," said Collingford, and held out a big, fresh handkerchief.

Alx took it and used it solemnly. Then its bulk struck a sudden note of humor. She laughed and Collingford smiled. As he gave back the handkerchief she pressed Collingford's hand. "I have been a little beast."

"No," said Collingford gravely. "You have been unspeakably lovable."

"It would have been that if I loved you. But I don't. That's why I've been a beast. To make you think—"

Collingford interrupted her. "You made me think nothing. Somehow I knew. I knew it was just loneliness running over from a full heart."

Alx nodded. "How wonderful of you to understand," she said. "Tenderly. Yes. I've been terribly lonely. Never before so lonely."

"You shall not be lonely any more," said Collingford. "Every day I'll come and talk to you, take you out—anything. I'm yours."

Alx shook her head from side to side. Her eyes refused him.

"Alx," cried Collingford, hurt. "don't you want me even for a friend?"

"Don't mistake what I'm going to say, will you?" said Alx.

Collingford shook his head.

"Gerry is coming back," went on Alx. "But—I don't know what he is bringing back. Perhaps it is something he can't share with me; perhaps it is something I do not want. When you went away I had only faith: now I have only doubt. Such a big doubt. That's why I said to you, 'I don't know.' And while I don't know I will not have you even for a friend." Alx flushed and fixed her eyes on Collingford's face. "Do you understand?"

Collingford's eyes were glowing.

"Yes," he said. "I think I do. You mean that perhaps—later on—you will send for me."

"Perhaps—only perhaps," whispered Alx.

Collingford picked up his hat and stick. He took Alx's hand and held it long. She would not look up. He stooped and kissed her fingers.

"I shall be waiting," he said.

CHAPTER XXXVIII

The peripatetic, pathogenic agent of malarial fever possesses the prime attribute of a bad penny—it comes back. Alan had often fatted himself to receive the prodigal, and he was not now at a loss to account for the sudden lassitude, the deadened palate and the transient sense of smell that had come upon him. He turned to Mrs. J. Y. "I'm afraid I'll have to lie down. I hate to be a nuisance, but I've got a touch of fever." To the initiated "a touch of fever" means anything from a slight indisposition to a knockout blow delivered below the belt. It is the sole phrase of confession recognized by the malarial cult. Happily for Alan, the expression on this occasion was no euphemism. He was suffering from a touch of fever, and nothing more, brought on by too continued exertion. He was shown to his room, his old room with its old-fashioned, many-paned windows, its enormous closet and, under recent coatings of white enamel paint, the many marks with which in boyhood he and his forbears had branded the ancient wood-work.

A flutter and then a sigh of disappointment went through Maple House at Alan's immediate eclipse. The children foresaw an order for silence or a veto on the afternoon's excursion to the lake. J. Y. became restless and wandered noiselessly about from room to room. Clem sat in the great window and dreamed and listened for Alan's bell. She would not go to the lake. The children were solemnly grave and then giggling by fits and starts.

The Eltons had come back from abroad. From Elm House Cousin Frances Elton, commonly known as Tom, short for tomboy, came racing across the lawn, wearing a red and bathing clothes and in a high treble giving a creditable imitation of an Indian warwhoop. At Tom's cry the children stampeded on to the veranda with sibilant cries of, "Ssssh!" Mrs. J. Y. looked at Nance and Nance smiled resignedly. They put away their work, ordered the wagonette and the coats—colts no longer, alas, save in name—and departed with a wagon-load of suppressed youth. From Long Lane floated back peals of young laughter, breaking bounds as the overhanging trees hid the hill from view.

"My Boy, You Have Been Far Away."

Clem sat on the vast window seat and toyed with a book. J. Y. came and dropped down beside her. "Well, Clem, he's come back."

Clem nodded. "Are you sure he doesn't want anything, Uncle John? He hasn't had a thing to eat since seven o'clock this morning."

Alan's bell tinkled. Clem started to her feet and then sat down again. "You'd better go." But when J. Y. strode off she followed.

"Why is the house so quiet? Is it on account of the captain?" asked Alan.

"Bless you, no. The captain sleeps for a week at a time. The children have gone over to the lake."

"I just wanted to tell you that I like their noises—they're new. There's nothing really the matter with me except that I've got to take things in turn, and lying still and sweating comes first. After that, perhaps tomorrow, I'm going to eat. The penultimate act on my list is a cigarette and the ultimate is to get up in the old belfry and yell." He turned over and sank his head into the pillows.

"All right, my boy," said J. Y., smiling. "There's only Clem and myself here and we'll go and try to make noises like the children." He came out of the door in time to catch sight of Clem's skirt as it whisked around the corner of the hall. He followed and found her already seated at the piano. Her fingers wandered over the keys and then her soft, full voice broke out in one old song after another. She was happy because she felt that singing she was with Alan.

Alan stirred in his bed and listened. He determined that tomorrow he must be well. Robbed of this afternoon, he was being robbed of half of life. He cursed the fever and then, as he felt how near Clem's voice brought her to him, he blessed it.

ACHES AND PAIN

Don't neglect a pain anywhere, but find out what causes it and conquer the cause. A pain in the kidney region may put you on your back tomorrow. Don't blame the weather for swollen feet, it may be an advanced warning of Bright's disease. A pain in the stomach may be the first symptom of appendicitis. A creak in a joint may be the forerunner of rheumatism. Chronic headaches more than likely warn you of serious stomach trouble. A metropolitan theatrical production which carried its own orchestra had an orchestra of its own, they "doubled up." One night there was an awful discord, and the man in charge of the production noticed that the local musicians were playing half a tone lower than the company's orchestra.

"What's the matter?" whispered the producer to the local orchestra leader. "Your men are playing half a tone lower than the others."

"Sure, they are," said the leader.

THE TRUTH--and the

PROOF

"WORDS AND PROMISES ARE ONLY

GOOD WHEN BACKED UP BY DEEDS."

This axiom is just as true today as it was when Socrates uttered it hundreds of years ago.

And I attribute my success as a specialist,

principally to the fact, that I never attempt to treat cases that are incurable, and second, that

I back up my claims by absolute proof.

HERE IS THE PROOF:

They Say I Cure Do You Believe Them?

WRITE TO THEM AND SATISFY YOURSELF. Such Proof

can not be manufactured or imitated.

Black Creek, Wis., 2-17-13.

Dear Doctor:

It is with pleasure that I write you to say that after treating with you I am completely cured of Chronic Appendicitis and Gall Stones. Other doctors wanted to operate. I weighed 19 lbs. more than I did when I started treatment. I was sent to you by a lady you cured of Gall stones two years ago. You may refer to me at any time.

TOLD HE HAD CONSUMPTION.

Read This Letter.

Chilton, Wis., Aug. 1, 1913.

Dear Doctor:

In September, 1912, I consulted you

at Appleton, Wisconsin. At that time

I weighed about 160 pounds and was suffering from shortness of breath and general break down of health. I had been told by a physician that I had consumption and I doctored with him without getting any better. As soon as I began treatment with you, I began to feel better; my breathing got all right and I began right away to gain in weight and strength. I have done a full day's work every day this summer and am now in perfect health and weigh 180 pounds, which is more than I ever weighed in my life. I am very glad that I came to you and feel that I am owing my good health to your skill in knowing how to treat

me. You may refer to me at any time, anyone desiring proof of your ability.

Yours truly,

OTTO MALLE,

DR. GODDARD,

MILWAUKEE SPECIALIST

121 WISCONSIN STREET MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN

The boy reasoned that if Miss Lemon had meant to lose the rule on him

she would have done it in the presence of the school, because she never lost an opportunity for improving the discipline by an example of this kind.

But whatever she might do, he had his note to fall back upon. And then she had told him to stay after school at night, too. What might not happen?

"Now Winsor," said Miss Lemon, "I want you to give me the note you really wrote instead of that dummy

one you handed to me. Now you hesitate because I know that you didn't write it, and I don't want to watch you write it, and you wrote

at least three sentences. Come now!"

"All right," said Winsor. "Here

it is."

Now this prompt reply was anything but what the teacher had expected. She started in surprise, and the very manner of the boy made her feel sure that something was the matter. She had supposed that he would maintain that he had given her

the real note, and had been prepared to use severe measures to extract the truth from him.

"Give it to me," she cried. And she snatched the bit of paper from Winsor's outstretched hand. Winsor watched her unfold it, and there was no uneasiness in his gaze. What was she doing about such an insignificant as that? At that moment came the full consciousness of the meaning of what he had written. "I was awful sorry that Miss Lemon caught me with that note." The words would condemn him. The teacher would immediately realize the deception. Oh, what an awful blunder it was! He could stop her from reading it in some way. But what was there? It was already too late.

Miss Lemon opened the note and read it through without saying a word. Then she read it through again. She bit her lips, as if in perplexity.

Winsor cringed against the back of his seat, and a wild, hopeless look came into his eyes. His doom was sealed. Miss Lemon calmly folded up the paper and walked over to her desk, where she pulled out a drawer.

At this, the boy started forward in excitement. He had never seen that drawer opened before. By craning his neck he managed to get a fairly good view of the interior. The sight fairly startled him. There, before his eyes, arranged in neat piles, were seemingly thousands of sheets of paper, and he saw that the drawer was the drawer she had spoken of where she had on file at least one note from every person in school.

He and as he watched Miss Lemon took a very large pile from the drawer, and added to it the note

Winsor had just given her. This must be his pile. There, in plain sight, was the complete collection of all the notes which had fallen into Miss

Lemon's hands since the opening of school. There was all the evidence against him. And he was threatened to send the whole pile to his parents unless there was a sudden change in his behavior.

As quickly as possible Miss Lemon

retrieved the notes to their proper place and closed the drawer.

When she turned around, Winsor was occupied in the study of his left shoe.

Evidently he had not noticed what she had been doing. She walked over and stood in front of him, and

"That was a pretty trick," said she,

"but it won't work. I have dechided the fact that the note you handed was the real one. It was one you wrote later, in an attempt to pull the wool over my eyes. Perhaps experience will show you that such tricks don't go with me."

Ordinarily the boy would have been amazed, as she intended he should

and would have wondered how under the sun she had found out the deception. But as it was, he already knew the real reason for the teacher's misled him now appeared in an almost laughable light. Instead of making him wonder, it made him rather angry.

"You're quite a decipherer," said

he. With the sentence out of his mouth, he regretted it, for Miss Le-mon's eyes flashed in a way which he guessed was a warning. He stammered, "I knew you'd find it out—I gave you—Oh, I dunno!"

"That," said Miss Lemon, "will be all rest of the recess. You may go out now. You will see you will be expected to explain some very curious actions. And one thing more, I shall expect to see you at school this afternoon. You are not to skip with only lead to a worse state of mind.

Winsor did not feel particularly light hearted over his dismissal. He was as did Miss Lemon, that the worst way to cope with a teacher was to argue and quarrel with her.

He arose and stumbled toward the door.

"Now," said Splinter, "I wouldn't do you any good to skip, as the Lemon says. I guess you'll be in there it was about half past twelve and Winsor had eaten a hurried dinner, and hastened away to take common and friend of his, commonly known only as "Splinter" and who had related the morning's events and his story was what brought forth the remark.

"Say," said Winsor, "I've think I'm going back there and let her hear</

BADGER REGIMENTS READY FOR SERVICE

Wisconsin Can Furnish 3,300 Officers and Men in Case National Guard Is Called.

"Wisconsin can furnish 3,300 officers and men if the entire National guard of this state is called by the president," Governor E. L. Philipp made the above statement yesterday in answer to an inquiry by the New York Sun. "The Wisconsin National guard can be ready to move in twenty-four hours after a call is received," said Lieutenant Colonel Peter Piasicki, highest military officer in Milwaukee. "The membership in every military company is on a full peace footing of eighty-one men. We are ready and fully equipped in case of necessity. The cavalry and artillery would not doubt to first. The development of these units is very serious. It is not likely that we will be called upon."

Badgers With 23rd.

Troop A is ranked as one of the best cavalry organizations in the middle west.

The Second Wisconsin Infantry at Appleton has announced that it stands ready to send more men into the field than at any time in the history of the regiment. There are 1,021 officers and men on the rolls.

Jacob J. Gerhardt of Milwaukee is with the Twenty-third regiment, which has been stationed at Galveston and which has been ordered into Mexico. He is the son of Martin Gerhardt, 2624 Villet street, and was graduated last year from West Point. He ranks as second lieutenant.

Harley B. Bullock, brother of Warren Bullock, Milwaukee newspaperman, is also a second lieutenant in the Twenty-third.

West Virginia's Quota.

Charleston, W. Va., March 11.—Adjutant General John Bond, after receiving reports from officers of West Virginia National guard, said today he could have 1,500 men with the necessary field equipment ready to move in forty-eight hours, should the government need them for service on the border.

A movement has been launched here to purchase an aeroplane for the guards.

MANY OPENINGS FOR EXPLORERS IN AFRICA

Bureau of Geographic Information of the National Geographic Society.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Washington, D. C., March 11.—The practical termination of German rule in Africa has opened up many openings for explorers in Africa. The fact that the dark continent is the greatest region of colonial exploitation in the world. The area of Africa is 11,262,000 square miles, exclusive of the islands of the city of Philadelphia. Abyssinia's area is a little more than twice as great as that of France or Germany and its population equals that of Pennsylvania.

"England controls a territory in Africa larger than that of the entire United States, including Alaska. The African population under English domination is one-half as great as the entire population of the United States. France, at the outset of the war had an African territory equal in area to that of the United States and all of her possessions in Mexico. The population of the African territories equals that of Brazil."

"Portuguese holdings in Africa are as large as Mexico, with a population about half as dense. Belgian holdings are one-third, and those of Italy one-fifth as large as the territory of continental United States."

"It is an interesting fact that Great Britain's holdings in Africa are almost exactly equal to those of the United States. They are thirty-five times as large as the United Kingdom itself, and have a population large enough to replace that of the United Kingdom with which to populate a new London to spare."

"The African holdings of France are twenty-two times as large in area as the home country itself, while the population is nearly two-thirds as great. Belgian holdings are eighty-two times as great in area as Belgium herself, while the population is more than twice as great. Italy controls 1,000,000 square miles of African territory, which is five times as much as her European area."

"These figures were prepared by the National Geographic society, whose headquarters are in Washington, and which now has the largest membership of any scientific institution in the world. The statement which contains them then proceeds:

"The manner in which the nations of Europe have partitioned Africa is the most unique chapter in the history of political geography."

"Before 1880 Africa was allowed to drift along almost undisturbed by the politics of the outside world. It is true that scientific and commercial activities from Europe had invaded the continent and had begun to have been any appointment of territory having the sanction of international agreements."

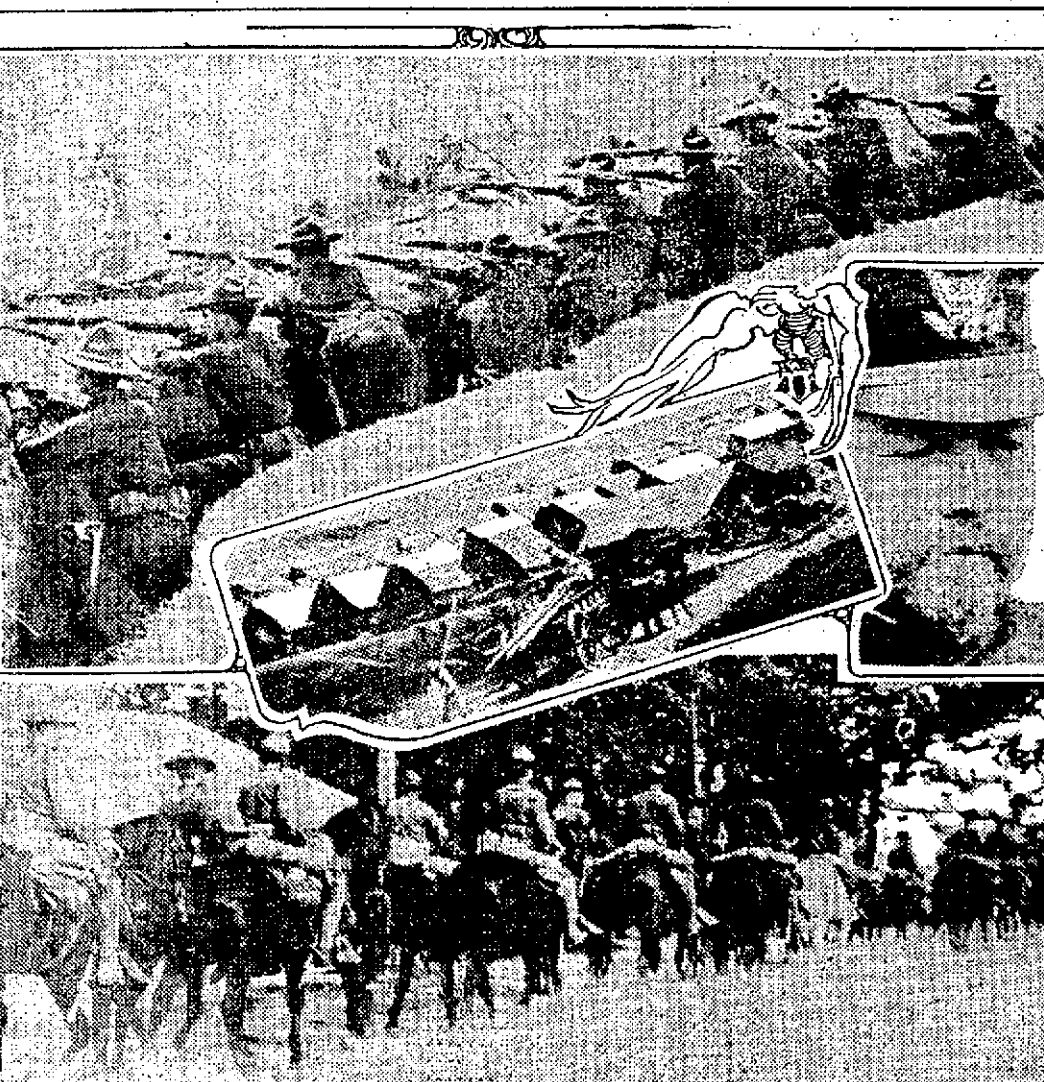

"In 1884 King Leopold of Belgium succeeded in having a conference called to determine the status of the Congo territory held in trust for civilization by the African International Association. The result of this conference was the act of the Congo Free State with the king of Belgium at its head. In addition thereto the conference defined the general sphere of influence of the powers in Africa."

"In 1890, following out the plans of the conference, Great Britain negotiated a treaty, signed in Berlin, which gave her Germany and Italy the right of a through railroad across Africa entirely on German soil. On the other hand, by gaining possession of the territory in southern Africa to the Belgian Congo, Germany at the same time prevented the construction of a Cape-to-Cairo railway under British control."

"A month later the English and French signed an agreement recognizing a British protectorate over Zanzibar and Pemba, a French protectorate over Madagascar, and a French sphere of influence in Africa southward to a point between the town of Say and Lake Chad. Still later England and Portugal came to an agreement defining the delimitation of their respective territories."

"In later years came the Boer war, and thereafter another general scramble for influence in Africa, in which Great Britain secured control over the Orange Free State and the Transvaal, Belgium formally annexed the Congo Free State, Italy seized Tripoli, and France finally extended a protectorate over Morocco."

The Element of Time in Prayer

By REV. HOWARD W. POPE of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT—Men ought always to pray and not to faint.—Luke 18:1.

Some requests are answered very quickly. A lady was once giving an address on narcotics.

At the close of a young man said to her, "I do not think it is wrong to use tobacco."

"Are you a Christian?" she asked. "Yes," was the reply.

"Have you ever asked God for his opinion?"

"No."

"Well, if you are a Christian, I suppose you are willing to leave the matter to his decision. Let us kneel right down here and ask him. I will pray first, and then you follow."

The young man could not consistently refuse. He knelt with her, and at the close of her prayer he began to pray himself. He had not uttered three sentences before he sprang to his feet, saying, "I see it. It is not right. I will give it up at once."

In this case prayer was answered immediately, but in many cases the answer is long delayed.

When Mr. George Muller was in this country a friend of mine asked him how long he had ever prayed continuously for any object. Taking a little book from his pocket, he said, "When I was converted I was a wild boy in college. My conversion broke friendship between my roommate and myself, for he would have nothing to do with such a fanatic," he said. I wrote his name in this book and promised God that I would pray for him each day until he was converted, or until I died. I prayed five years with no apparent result. Ten years went by with no change. I continued on for fifteen years—twenty years, and still he was an unbeliever. I did not yet give up, but prayed twenty-five years, each day mentioning his name at the throne of grace, and then came a letter saying, 'I have found the Savior.' Then," said Mr. Muller, "I checked out this petition as answered. In this same book I have other names that I have prayed for for five, ten and fifteen years, and scores of names against which there is a cross, showing that the requests have been granted."

Here, then, was a man who made a business of prayer, and who kept his account with the Lord in a business-like way. When he had a matter to present to God's attention he first found a promise on which to base his appeal, always making sure, if possible, that it was according to God's will. Then he recorded his petition in a book and watched and waited for the answer. Is it any wonder that this man's faith grew rapidly, and that he became the most notable and possibly the most successful prayerer of modern times?

We see by this illustration why many prayers fail; they are rambling appeals, so vague and indefinite that even the petitioner can hardly remember what he prayed for when he rises from his knees. Not expecting any answer, no record is made of them, and no surprise is felt if the answer does not come. And so the solemn farce goes on year after year.

It is said that in battle it takes a hundred pounds of lead to kill a man, because 99 pounds and 15 ounces of it is wasted in wild firing which aims at nothing and hits no one. On the other hand, the sharpshooter wastes no ammunition, but picks his man and makes every bullet tell. So, if we would pray for fewer objects, more carefully selected, and then make a record of our prayers and watch for the answer, we would not waste so much breath, and we would obtain more results.

Delay in answering prayer often proves a great blessing to us. In some cases it tests the strength of our desire, and shows us that we did not care very much about the objects at all, just as a request for an education which is soon dropped shows the parent that the boy was not sufficiently in earnest to appreciate the privilege if he had it. In other cases delay leads us to examine our motives, and we find that they are purely or partially selfish, and withdraw the request of our own accord. Possibly the delay opens our eyes to some secret sin, and leads us to abandon it, for "if I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me."

Man is a creature of growth, and it takes time and change and children, and oftentimes losses and bereavements and old age, to soften his heart and show him his need of a Savior.

Consider how many influences wrought upon you before you yielded; how many appeals were made, how many times the still, small voice whispered before you answered "Yes."

Consider all this—you will not wonder that it takes time for God to answer prayer which involves the change of a human will from disobedience to obedience.

Lord, teach us how to pray.

EVANSVILLE COUPLE UNITED IN MARRIAGE AT WOODSTOCK, ILL.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Evansville, March 11.—Married at Woodstock, Ill., Wednesday afternoon March 9th, by Rev. C. D. Wheeler, Miss Nellie W. Nesbitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Nesbitt, of Evansville, Wis., and Irvin F. Lawrence, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lawrence also of Evansville. The young couple expect to make their home in Woodstock for some time, but both will be well remembered by Evansville people, for until recently their homes have been in or near that city.

Archie Wood, of Magnolia, and Miss Eva Dams, of near this city, were married by the Rev. Charles E. Coon at his parsonage at 7:30 last evening. The bride is the estimable daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Danks, who reside about three miles southeast of Evansville. She and her parents formerly resided in Stoughton, where she graduated from the high school. The groom is a successful young man of splendid qualities, being the nephew of Charles Moore, the well-known hunter road commissioner. They will go to housekeeping immediately on the Will Wadsworth farm, about three miles southeast of this city. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Danks, of Magnolia, and a nephew of Mrs. H. L. Lohr of this city, and Mrs. C. W. Brooks of Evansville. The congratulations of their many friends follow.

Mr. and Mrs. Paulson were returned from a visit with Beloit relatives. Earl Sholtz and Bud Sholtz of Madison were Evansville visitors Sunday night.

Frank Hyne spent Thursday and Friday in Madison.

Willis Decker and Leslie Miller were Madison visitors Sunday.

Mrs. Frank C. Tupper, of Frank Tupper spent today at the George Gordon home at Lodi.

Mrs. P. Paulson was a Janesville visitor Friday.

Misses Nellie Heffron and Ada Curless spent Sunday in Madison.

Miss V. Rawley is spending the week end at her parental home at Janesville.

John Tullar spent yesterday in Janesville.

E. J. Ballard was a Madison visitor Thursday.

Mrs. Anna Taft is spending the week-end at her parental home at Whitewater.

O. C. Jones spent Thursday in Madison.

Brown of Woodstock, Ill., is spending the week end at his parental home here.

William Phelps transacted business in Madison the latter part of the week.

David Johnson is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Anna Park at Sun Prairie.

O. C. Goodnow was a Janesville visitor Friday.

David Phelps transacted business in Madison the latter part of the week.

Mass Marjorie McCarthy spent the week-end with Miss Inez Murray.

Miss Alice Murray is spending the week with Mrs. Charles Davis of Magnolia.

Mrs. Frank Bullard and Mrs. Jennie Murray entertained the Community Center club at the home of the latter Thursday. Everyone enjoyed a pleasant afternoon.

TO RENT AT EVANSVILLE, WIS.: A good house and farm buildings on 31 acres of suburban acreage. Just across the city limits line. Direct and easy access to the business center of the city. Well located. See me at once

A LETTER THAT SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

HOME OF CHARACTER NO. 105-I

This is an elaboration of the most popular house designed by The John Henry Newson Co. In it are incorporated all of the newest and most up-to-date ideas in house construction.

The first story and chimney are in rough cut brick of the tapestry type, with the second story and dormers in stucco divided into panels by exposed beams which are stained dark brown. The roof shingles are laid in irregular courses and are curved over the barge to imitate thatch. Metal casement sash with leaded glass are used in all windows.

In the plan, which is compact with no waste space, the desirable features of No. 105 are retained, but the arrangement of kitchen and stairs is improved, a coal closet is gained and size of bedrooms and bath increased. Interior finish and equipment will be specified as client desires. Oak stained and waxed would be suitable for living room and dining room, and white enamel for bedrooms and bath.

The house is 26 by 36 feet in site and can be built for from $3500 to $5000.

This department answers inquiries concerning these plans without charge. Simply give number of home and address "Homes of Character Dept., The Gazette."
